AN ITEM OF IMPORTANCE

to every person who desires to be of value and to do something worth while, is the question of the General Health. In order to do well in any sphere of life it is of the first importance to be well. There are no doubt many ways by which the health can be maintained or improved; but there is none of more consequence than the admirable plan of caring for the digestion. "Take care of the digestion and the General Health will take care of itself"—might well be adopted as a useful motto. And in this great matter so vital to the well-being of everyone, a course of Beecham's Pills from time to time will be found of the greatest service. A sound digestion is the basis of normal health and vigour. Any disorders of this important function should be promptly dealt with. Beecham's Pills both prevent and relieve digestive troubles. If you suffer from sluggish liver, constipation, impaired appetite, flatulence, giddiness, sick headache, biliousness and other symptoms of stomach derangement, you will be doing the right thing by taking

READJUSTMENT.

The Committee feel sure that the Public will understand and sympathise when they know the following:—

The Pay of the Nursing Staff has been increased.

Their working hours have been reduced.

Probationers' Fees have been abolished.

This will cost the Hospital at least £1,000 per annum extra.

The Committee confidently appeal to the Public for extra subscriptions, as without them they will be reluctantly compelled to close some of the wards.

DARTRY DYE WORKS

We beg to notify our Customers that a Strike has taken place at these Works.

It is not a question of Wages.

It is not a question of Hours.

It is caused by the Dyers' Union trying to force 4 Heads of Departments to join the Union against their will.

We regret that it will cause unadvoidable annoyance to our Customers, but trust that, under the circumstances, they will forgive us.

DOING HIS BIT.

A PARSON POSTMAN.

After more than three years' service, the Vicar of Ellerton Priory, who during that time has acted as postman, is retiring from his self-imposed task.

When the boys were called to the Army the village was threatened with isolation, but the vicar decided to take up the work; his wife did relief duty, and for four winters and three summers they have never missed the daily delivery. During that time the vicarage has become the village post office, the people going there to buy their stamps and to register their letters and parcels.

"I have carried tons of stuff round to our farmers," said the vicar. "And so have I," added the vicar's wife, as she recalled the Christmas parcels.

The Rev. F. C. B. Darwent does his round of nine miles on his bicycle, and on the average gets round in a couple of hours. Mrs. Darwent has a tricycle. In the summer months, day after day for 20 weeks, she took continuous duty. Both are duly sworn in and officially authorised to act as letter-carriers.

Funny things happened, especially at first. The villagers expected efficiency, and they soon complained if letters were "late," or blamed the "postman" if a parcel had come to pieces in the post.

ROMANCE OF THE WAR.

A War Office announcement that Lieutenant-Colonel Edward Parker England, having completed service in the rank, is placed on the half-pay list, Royal Artillery, recalls a romantic story of the war.

Colonel England got his first commission 33 years ago, and reached his present rank in 1913. Removed from the service after the retreat from Mons in 1914, at the age of 50 he enlisted as a private in the South African Horse, and served 12 months in East Africa.

He was afterwards transferred to France, and it was announced in the London Gazette of January 24, 1918, that the King had approved of his reinstatement in the rank of lieutenant-colonel with his previous seniority in consequence of his devotion to duty and gallantry in the field while in the ranks of the Devonshire Regiment.

WHAT IS A SAUSAGE?

GOVERNMENT TAKES COUNSEL.

The Morning Post reports that at a discussion on the sausage, its constituents, manufacture, and analysis, at a meeting of the Society of Public Analysts, Dr. Rideal said that the Ministry of Food had recently asked them to assist in determining the ingredients of the sausage. In different Orders issued by the Ministry the sausage was described as "meat"—"dead meat," but it was omitted from a third Order restricting the extent of pig products to Ireland, and pig sausage could be exported to Ireland because it was not bacon, ham, or lard.

In a still later Order the Ministry apparently thought that sausages should no longer be meat, but should consist of two grades, one containing 50 per cent. of meat and the other 67 per cent. That raised the question whether is was possible to differentiate between the 50 per cent. sausage and the 67 per cent., and it was difficult to say what really was a sausage.

Mr. Samuel Pope, who intimated that he was present at the request of the Food Controller, said the action of the Food Ministry in grading the sausage, although it had been the subject of some jest, marked an advance, because it was the first guarantee the public had that there was any meat value in the sausage. (Laughter.)

A JAPANESE TRAGEDY.

ROMANCE OF THE STAGE.

The Daily Chronicle gives details of the suicide of Matsui Sumako, said to be the greatest actress Japan has ever produced, in grief for the death of her lover, Professor Shimamura.

Papers just arrived from Japan tell the tragic story.

Shimamura had given up everything he had—his wife, his children, a great number of his friends, and his professorial chair—for the woman he loved. Matsui would not live without him.

"MUST DIE BEAUTIFULLY."

One Saturday evening, having finished her make-up at the theatre, she asked her colleagues smilingly:—

> Do you notice how I have made my face up prettier than usual? Indeed, I wish to die like the beautiful heroine of the drama I am now playing. Since the professor's death I have been always thinking regarding what way I should die.
> I must die beautifully. There are lots of people who cannot die, even through suicide, and they are living crippled and superannuated. What a shame for them!

She went home from the theatre that night and sat up writing letters of farewell. In one to her brother she asked to be buried with Professor Shimamura. Then at five o'clock in the morning she hanged herself with a beautiful scarlet sash, dying at the very hour her lover had passed two months before.

EIGHT YEARS ON STAGE.

Sumako was in no need of money. She had a fortune of 40,000 yen (about £4,250), and had nothing to worry her save her love for the dead man. She had announced publicly that she would provide a sixth of her money for Shimamura's widow and children.

Her initial part, on graduating from the dramatic school in 1911, at the age of 25, was Ophelia, in a production of "Hamlet," at the Imperial Theatre. Since then she had become highly popular. Her greatest artistic success was as the heroine of Tolstoy's "Resurrection." Among other parts she had appeared in were Salome and Magda.

CONTROVERSY OVER BURIAL.

Over the question whether the actress's remains, according to her wish, should be laid to rest beside those of her lover, a great controversy arose in Tokyo, and the "awakening moral sense" in Japan was strongly in evidence in opposition to the proposal.

Eventually it was decided to lay Sumako's ashes in the Shimamura burial plot, alongside those of the professor, but not in the same grave. Mrs. Shimamura gave her consent, but expressed the wish that when she died her body might not be interred there, but somewhere in her native town.

A proposal to erect a "lover's mound" on the Shimamura grave does not appear to have been sufficiently supported.

As an echo of the sensational suicide and the subsequent public discussion, a 14-year-old boy took the death of the actress so much to heart that he hanged himself, determined to follow her into the hereafter through the avenue she had shown him.

BOXING.

Death of Digger Stanley.

The death occurred at Fulham yesterday, after a long illness, of Digger Stanley, aged 48, an ex-England and World's Bantam-weight Champion, and the first winner right out of a Lonsdale Belt. He was 5 ft. 6½ ins. tall, and at his best scaled 8st. 6lb. He had a long career as a boxer, first coming into prominence in 1902 by defeating Owen Moran. He fought his last contest at the Ring, Blackfriars, two years ago. A clever, speedy boxer, with a telling punch with both fists, he had a notable list of successes, meeting all the best men at his weight. Pedlar Palmer twice defeated him, but he won the English and World's Championships from Joe Bowker in 1910, and, though he lost the world's title to Ledoux, the famous French bantam, two seasons later, and the English title to Benyon in 1913, he defeated Benyon at the National Sporting Club later in the year, and so made the Lonsdale Belt his own property. In the following April, when he was disqualified for holding, he lost the title to Curley Walker.

Coming Contests.

Seaman Walter Ross, the Scottish boxer, has been matched to meet Tommy Noble, the holder of the Lonsdale Bantam-weight Belt, in a match for the championship, at the National Sporting Club on Monday evening, April 14th. Sergeant Joe Attwood, the Canadian Welter-weight Champion, and Johnny Summers, ex-champion welter-weight of England, have been matched for a fifteen-rounds contest, to be decided at the National Sporting Club on April 7th.

Public Schools Championships.

At a meeting of the Amateur Boxing Championships Council, held last evening at Aldgate, London, it was announced that the Prince of Wales would attend the Public Schools Championships, which will be held at Regent street Polytechnic on April 11.

BILLIARDS.

The Championship.

M. Inman v. T. Reece.

This match advanced a step nearer completion at Thurston's Hall, Leicester square, London, yesterday afternoon, when Reece only managed to knock 11 off the holder's overnight lead of 2,004. Inman lacked his usual concentration; but this frame of mind was induced by the fact that he lost his father earlier in the day. Mr. R. W. Inman, who was a good, old-fashioned player himself, died at the age of 74, and he was well known in racing circles. Under the circumstances, the champion put up a good show, and he averaged 39 for an aggregate of 669, while Reece's statistics worked out at 40 and 680 respectively. The highest breaks were 120 (full), 175, 43, 79, 59, 38, 52, 67, and 90 (unfinished) by Inman, and 157, 87, 267, and 114 by Reece. At the interval Inman led by 1,993 points. Scores:—Inman (in play), 6,002; Reece, 4,009.

Inman was absolutely master of the position when play closed last evening, for he enters upon the concluding session of the match leading by 2,448 points. Reece, realising, perhaps, the hopelessness of the situation, made no great effort last evening; indeed, his only breaks were 81 and 52. Still, Inman gave him few chances. The champion accounted for his necessary quota of points in seventy minutes, making his afternoon's unfinished break into 95, adding a similar break shortly afterwards, and then rung of 269 (which he started by scoring off a double baulk), 131, and finished up the sitting with 35 (unfinished). His average for the evening was 51, against Reece's 16. Closing scores:—Inman (in play), 6,667; Reece, 4,219.

Big Breaks by Falkiner.

Yesterday afternoon Falkiner increased his unfinished 278 to 411, following with 103, 125, 192, and 117 (unfinished). Raynor contributed a capital 107. Interval scores:—Falkiner (in play), 7,750; Raynor, 5,801. In the evening Falkiner added a further 136, and afterwards 132 and an unfinished 417, Raynor making best breaks of 58 and 69. Closing scores:—Falkiner (in play), 8,500; Raynor, 6,025.

Peall v. Williams.

In this game of 4,000 up at Soho square, London, yesterday Peall increased his lead to 1,139, giving an excellent display. He made two excellent breaks of 95 and 86, showing good control over the balls. His other efforts of note were 56, 62, 64, 41, and 58, with several smaller runs. Williams' best breaks were 32, 48, 37, and 45. Scores: Peall (in play), 3,333; Williams (rec. 500), 2,194.

'FLU'S LINGERING EFFECTS.

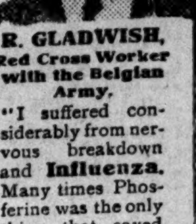
Persons Who had Disease Months Ago Still Suffering.

Influenza's aftermath is affecting the health of thousands of Londoners. Persons who had the disease months ago complain of not having got over it yet.

Doctors in different parts of the metropolis who were consulted by The Evening News stated that the principal after-effects appear to be
- Weakened heart
- Loss of memory
- Lack of concentration
- Nerves more easily upset
- Greater susceptibility to colds
- Loss of vigour, and
- An "influenza feeling" which they cannot shake off.

Are these ill-effects likely to be permanent? The doctors point out that

It is to the nervous system that we have to look for the worst permanent effects. 'Flu brings a high disturbance of the nervous system, and there is a likelihood of permanent injury to the nerves.



R. GLADWISH,
Red Cross Worker with the Belgian Army.

"I suffered considerably from nervous breakdown and Influenza. Many times Phosferine was the only thing that saved me from a complete collapse and kept me going."

Prvt. J. H. STRINGER,
A. & S. Highlanders.

"I had the 'Flu and could not manage my duties while on the patrol, and was sent to my billet. The same night I was very bad, but having read the good Phosferine has done in 'Flu cases, I took some Tablets, and the pains went from my head, and my stomach began to get in order again."

"We were rushed to Italy amongs the snow, and what with the dam and the cold, I soon found myself wi a touch of the 'Flu, but quickly got ri of it; I am thankful to say, I wardi off colds and neuralgia, and kept m self fit, because I did not forget Pho ferine."

STAFF SERGEANT W. COOK, Royal Engineers.

"On Sunday, Feb. 2, I was taken with the 'Flu, shivering fits, pains in legs, hi and shoulders, also a rising temperature. To try to keep warm I went to bed in billet with boots, putties and overcoat on. The following day I was the same, b kept about on duty, at 4.30 p.m. my temperature was 103·5. I then remember that somewhere in my kit I had some Phosferine so I found it and took four table I went to bed about 8 p.m. and took two more tablets. On the Tuesday morni at 7 a.m. I took my temperature, and to my great surprise found I was down 98·9, or only half a degree above normal; this soon disappeared and I 'carri on' as the pains and shivers had by then left me. I took the remainder of the table about eight, and since then I've felt 'top hole.' It was Phosferine tablets th effected the rapid cure. I am 56 years of age."

These experienced soldiers are convinced it is a publi duty to testify to the unfailing efficacy of Phosferine a preventive of, and remedy for, the disastrous scourg of Influenza now raging throughout the world Phosferine stimulates the nerve centres to produce th extra vital force needed to prevent the perilous nervo collapse and exhaustion so peculiar to Influenza epidemic

MUSSULMAN REFUGEES.

SUFFERINGS IN THE SOUTHERN CAUCASUS.

AN ARMENIAN FEUD.

Mr. Scotland Liddell, the Correspondent of the British Press, writes from Zangelan, South Caucasus, January 28th (Press Association war special):—

After a tiring week's ride on horseback on narrow rocky paths that zig-zagged up and down the steep sides of several mountain chains, and through bridgeless, broad swift-running streams, I have reached the extreme south of the Zangezruski Province. The frontier river Araks is in sight, and beyond it are the high snow-covered Persian hills. The several Caucasian horses that I rode were really goat-like in sure-footedness. Parts of the tracks that led along the edge of cliffs a thousand feet and more in depth were little more than half a foot in breadth. Had I not travelled by this route myself I would have sworn that no horse could pass there. Now I am stiff and sore and tired, but I have the pleasure that explorers have, for no Briton has been here before.

A week ago I was in Shusha, the chief town in the Karabagh Province. In that district were 13,000 Armenian refugees from former Turkish territory, as well as 9,000 refugees from villages destroyed by Turks and Tartars in the neighbourhood of Shusha itself. On the first day of my journey here I passed many ruined, burned-out villages from which these latter refugees had fled. But now I have seen another side of this very difficult Caucasian question. In the Zangezruski Province, I am told, there are 40,000 Mussulman refugees—homeless people, whose villages west of this district have been destroyed by Armenians in some terrible revengeful weeks following on the massacre of Armenians by Tartars and Turks in Baku last year. In the villages I have visited here I have seen at least 10,000 of these wretched people. They blame Antranik, the leader of the independent Armenian Army, for their homelessness, but the real culprits, I believe, are a group of Armenian political provocateurs, who have themselves profited materially from the looted Mussulman districts, and who have allowed Antranik to be accused of the crimes of which they, and they alone, are guilty. I might also add that neither the Mussulman nor the Armenian peoples are responsible for the intense bitterness and tragic hatred that each race has for the other; but, in my opinion—and this is also the opinion of many well-informed authorities—the two peoples would be quite content to live peaceably one with the other were it not that they are frequently stirred to strife by political wire-pullers and agitators who have their own special ends in view.

It has been my misfortune to participate in three big retreats in this war—the first in Belgium, the second in Poland, and the third in Rumania—but I have never seen such distress in any theatre of war as I have seen in the small villages down here amongst these glorious, lonely, quiet hills. The people are starving and sick and naked, and they are dying at an appalling rate. Here are some of the villages I have visited, with the number of refugees and the number of deaths in January to date:—

Kubatlu ...	800	Refugees.	75	died in January.
Danirchilar	500	„	84	„
Dondarlu ...	660	„	150	„
Gainlik	1,200	„	100	„
Malatkeshin	689	„	57	„
Pirchevan	1,033	„	83	„
Khojagan ...	527	„	105	„
Zangelan ...	933	„	44	„

These villages, they tell me, are prosperous ones, and a number of well-to-do people live in them, so the refugees receive much charity. In other and poorer villages the condition of the refugee is very much worse, and the mortality is very much greater.

It is difficult to describe the filth and squalor in which these Mussulmans are existing. For the most part, they live in stables and cowsheds, lying down beside horses and donkeys, and oxen and sheep and goats. Heaps of rotting manure are on all sides, and the lack of all sanitation makes one marvel how it is that the people have not all died. Other refugees live in mud huts, and others still in shelters made of branches and heaped-up earth. In one of these huts I found fifteen women and children, four of whom were lying seriously ill. This hut was only five yards square and less than two yards in height. A wood fire burned in the centre of the floor, and, as in the case of most Tartar cottages, there was no chimney, the smoke having an outlet in a hole in the middle of the roof. This hut was filled with smoke. I entered and remained for a few seconds, then had to go outside to breathe.

In one stable I saw an old woman lying on a heap of rags and dirty straw. A little boy sat huddled up at one end of her bed. He held her feet in his hands, trying to infuse some warmth into them. Two other children sat at each side of the old woman rubbing her chilled fingers with their own. Obviously the old woman was dying. In this same village five people had died up to 11 o'clock in the morning I was there. The new graves in the burial ground were eloquent. And the people lamented not the dead, but that they had to be buried without a shroud. . . .

Most of the children were practically naked. Some had a piece of thin cotton, less than a yard square, around their shoulders; others had a piece of sacking in lieu of clothes. Even the best clad were dressed in very insufficient rags. One boy I saw was clad caveman-wise in a rough skin. And their faces, thin and white and pinched. . . . I can only describe some of them as like to death's skulls.

I am afraid that many hundreds of these Mussulman refugees will die before help can be given them. Their most urgent needs for the moment are food and clothes, but what they themselves told me they wanted most was a British guarantee that they can return to their former villages and to their former small farms without fear of further molestation. There is a British Mission at Shusha at present, and it is hoped that the British authorities will be successful in arranging matters between Mussulmen and Armenians, so that the feud between the peoples will come to an end. I understand that General Milne, who has just paid a visit to the Caucasus, has announced that British help will be given to all refugees here, irrespective of race and religion. I also hear that two hundred American doctors are coming to the Caucasus to carry out relief work amongst the sick. This is good news, because in this Province of Zangezursk, the population of which is about 300,000, there are only two doctors, both of whom are in the Armenian town Gerusi. And there are absolutely no medical supplies of any kind. In Karabagh Province there are ten doctors, all of whom are in the town of Shusha. There is a general epidemic of hunger typhus in both these provinces, and in this region from which I am writing it is feared that thousands of refugees will die from malaria once the warmer weather comes unless they are able to return to their former villages and unless medical aid is forthcoming.

DUBLIN FOOD CASE.

Before Mr. Drury, K.C., in the Northern Police Court, Dublin, yesterday, Andrew Ryan, Beechmount House, Glasnevin, was summoned by Sergeant Horan (33 D) for failing to keep accurate accounts and records containing such particulars as were necessary to show whether or not he was complying with the provisions of the Butter (Ireland) No. 2 Order, dated 18th October, 1918. There was a second summons for failing to keep accurate records of dealings in bacon, ham, and lard; a third summons in respect of lard and cheese, and a fourth for selling 1st flour to a Mrs. McCormack for 2s. 11d., the controlled price being 2s. 9d.

Mr. J. W. Davis appeared to prosecute.

Mr. E. H. Burne, who defended, said that in the case of selling the flour 2s. 11d. was charged, but Mrs. McCormack came to the shop without a bag, and Mr. Ryan agreed to let her have a patent bag, on which he charged 3d. She returned this, and the 3d. was handed back.

Mr. J. Bathurst, an official of the Food Control Department, said that he examined the defendant's books showing transactions in such articles as bacon and flour. They only gave the articles sold and not the prices, only the total price being entered. The witness also mentioned that many of the pages were cut out close to the binding.

To Mr. Burne—He subsequently saw all the pages.

Mr. Burne said they were summoned for not keeping a record of dealings in cheese, but they had not dealt in cheese for a long time.

Mr. Drury struck out the summons as regards cheese.

Miss Clarke, the defendant's book-keeper, said that the books had been kept on the same system for seven years. They always kept a price list exhibited in the shop, but sometimes charged less than the controlled price. The leaves came out of an old ledger, but were all sent to the auditors.

Mr. Davis asked the witness why the books were not brought to court, and Mr. Drury was about to adjourn the case for their production, when Mr. Burne said that he was bound to admit that they did not keep the records that the Department wanted kept. They were kept according to the invoices.

Mr. Drury said that he would give the defendant the benefit of the doubt in the selling case, and in each of the others he imposed a fine of £5—£10 altogether.

IRISH SUPERANNUATED OFFICERS' ASSOCIATION.

At a recent meeting of the Irish Superannuated Officers' Association, Mr. Thunder in the chair, the members of the Association who had interviewed municipal representatives gave satisfactory reports, which showed that they are fully alive to the grievances of their pensioners and to the immediate necessity of remedying them. The letter of the Hon. Secretary to the Municipal Council, and which is on its agenda for the next meeting, was approved. Correspondence included a satisfactory reply from Mr. T. Budds, Hon. Secretary of the Retired Civil Servants' Federation.

THE IRISH PROHIBITION MOVEMENT.

The second annual meeting of the Strength of Britain and Ireland Movement was held at the office, 5 Leinster street, Dublin, on Friday, the 28th February, at 8 o'clock.

Amongst those present were—R. W. Booth, J.P. (in the chair); Miss M. S. Joynt, Mrs. Brown, Miss Brown, Eric Pearson, R. Bradley, W. Hogg and Mrs. Hogg, P. J. Gillespie and Mrs. Gillespie, Dr. Maurice Dockrell and Mrs. Dockrell, Leopold L. Dix, A. E. Brunton, W. Wigham, Joseph Mooney, J.P., and P. H. Grierson.

Apologies were received from Sir Algernon Coote, Bart.; Lady Wright, Professor Carpenter, the Misses Warren, Mrs. Preston, Miss H B. Lewis, Miss Eason, Miss Patten, and Messrs. Long and Smellie, for non-attendance.

The Chairman delivered a brief address on the needs of the movement, and referred to the advances it had made in Canada and America. He stated it was generally recognised that at home the Strength of Britain Movement had succeeded in bringing many into its ranks who had not hitherto been identified with temperance work. The Movement in the future would endeavour to assist in obtaining such measures of reform as would lead up finally to total prohibition.

A financial statement was submitted by the Hon. Treasurer, Mr. P. H. Grierson, which showed that there was a very satisfactory balance to the credit of the Society.

The adoption of the report was moved by Mr. Percy J. Gillespie. He said that the expenditure of this country on drink during 1917 was over eighteen million pounds of Irish money, and a very small amount of this went in the wages of the working classes, in comparison to that paid in the stable industries of the country. He pointed out the necessity that there was for the production of industrial alcohol for traction use, and generally in connection with internal combustion engines for agricultural and other purposes. Millions of pounds were spent during the war on petrol and other spirits not produced at home, while, if the resources of the country had been mobilised to produce denaturalised alcohol in the distilleries and breweries where intoxicating beverages were produced, an enormous amount of waste would have been avoided, with corresponding beneficial results to the manufacturer, the farmer, and the worker alike.

The report was seconded by Mr. William Hogg, who pointed out that the liquor trade took great credit at present for the fact that there was very little drunkenness, while they all knew that this reduction was due almost entirely to the high price and the restrictions placed upon its manufacture and distribution. If these restrictions were relaxed and the price reduced, he feared that there would inevitably be grave cause for regret on the part of every right-minded member of the community.

Mr. Joseph Mooney having supported the motion, it was unanimously adopted.

Dr. Maurice Dockrell spoke of the need there was for a correct understanding by the people of the true nature of alcohol, and pointed out that, if the Irishman understood as clearly as he ought that alcohol was a drug and not a beverage, he would be less ready to use it.

RESTORATION OF IRISH WOODS.

WORK FOR THE STATE AND COUNTY COUNCILS.

Mr. A. C. Forbes, F.H.A.S., O.B.E., delivered a lecture in the Theatre of the Royal Dublin Society yesterday on the restoration of Irish woods. He said that the fact that Ireland was originally thickly wooded may be found in the remains of tree growth found in the bogs scattered throughout the country. These, considered in conjunction with the climate, which has altered little, if at all, during the last two or three thousand years, prove that the present scarcity of timber is due to artificial and not to natural causes. To the total acreage of European forests Ireland contributes less than 300,000 acres, representing about 1½ per cent. of the land surface. Not only is this acreage decreasing, but the condition of the remaining woods is rapidly becoming worse through the felling of immature timber and the neglect of replanting operations. The average area replanted annually during the last few years has not exceeded one thousand acres, or less than an average of forty acres in each county. This destructive process has been aggravated during the war, owing to the cessation of timber imports and the consequent call upon Irish woods to make good the deficiency. The measures possible for restoring Irish woods to the required dimensions and conditions may be considered under the following heads—(1) The quantity and quality of timber required for native industries, and the area of woodland upon which it can be produced; (2) the possibility of obtaining the land; (3) the functions of the State, county councils, and private owners in forestry development. In normal times the annual production of timber from Irish woods amounted to about 400,000 loads. Of this quantity about 150,000 loads were exported to Great Britain as pitwood, leaving 250,000 loads for home consumption. Imports from abroad averaged 250,000 loads of coniferous timber and a small quantity of hardwood. At least 500,000 loads may, therefore, be regarded as the annual consumption in Ireland, equal to about 5 cubic feet per head of the population. To produce this quantity with the more rapid growing conifers an equal number of acres would be required, or an increase of approximately 200,000 on the existing areas. It is estimated that the present cost of imported timber, the quality of which is not necessarily superior to home grown, levies a tax on the timber-consuming public of from £1 to £2 per load, or a total sum of £25,000 to £40,000 per annum. This sum would be sufficient to finance an efficient scheme of afforestation. The 200,000 acres of additional land required for timber growing must be forthcoming from the rough grazing land of the country, which is estimated at 2,000,000 acres. The organisation of a successful programme of afforestation requires the co-operation and goodwill of the State, county councils, and private owners of land. To the State belongs the function of preserving the larger woodlands passing away from landlords, and the acquisition of suitable tracts of inferior land for afforestation purposes. County councils should encourage planting for shelter or ornament by owners or occupiers of land, and the establishment of local nurseries is an important function of this work.

EDUCATION ON THE RHINE.

OPPORTUNITIES FOR SOLDIERS.

Mr. W. Beach Thomas, writing to the Daily Mail from Cologne, says:—The Young Guards who come out in a few weeks' time will find that they are coming to something rather more like a university that an army. They will be able to take any degree they like: the London matriculation, the London, City and Guilds, and various art diplomas, and I should hope and expect Oxford and Cambridge entrances.

Over 40,000 soldiers in the 2nd Army are now taking courses apart from those attending odd lectures, but the new education being prepared for the Young Guards is of a scope that military imagination has never before embraced. An education ladder with every round complete has been prepared.

Those who approach the standard of the London matriculation will be allowed and encouraged to leave their local military duty and scene of activity to go inside the Army College or University, where they will enjoy rooms and food that would not be amiss at Oxford or Cambridge.

The ladder ascends from the battalion, which may be regarded as the elementary school with certain advanced and technical classes added, through the divisions and corps to the Army College, which is the university. Hitherto the Army education has been largely on behalf of people who have forgotten what they learned, thanks to years of war. The new education is a Young Guards' education for men fresh from school who want to advance from their present base; and the 2nd Army, which is commanded by an enthusiast in education, has thrown its best energy and brains into the organisation, and such professional enthusiasts as Sir Henry Hadow, in England, are lending invaluable assistance.

A GREAT CHANCE.

The education is divided under three heads, general, commercial, and technical, and extends from Greek and higher physics to such applied sciences as butchering and haircutting. An excellent technical college is already in being at Bonn, but in the 2nd Army, as in the 5th, the pick of the experimental farm, an excellent German institution of 360 acres, halfway between Bonn and Cologne, has been taken over and is already stocked with 60 cattle, many draft oxen, pigs, sheep, and hens, and the instructors cater for the needs of all classes who have traffic with the land.

The Young Guards will, in short, be pioneers of the most thorough schemes of education ever worked out and of a permanent reformation of the Army attitude to the intellectual well-being of soldiers and officers.

It goes without saying that games take their place in the scheme.

GOODS TRAIN DERAILED AT OMAGH.

A railway accident occurred at Omagh yesterday morning, as a consequence of which portion of a goods train was derailed, and two waggons containing pork and general goods wrecked. The train was approaching Omagh Market Junction when it broke in two portions, with the result that at Crevenagh Embankment and Bridge a heavy collision took place. The sleepers on the line were badly torn up by the derailed waggons. Crevenagh Bridge was damaged, and the points at the junction gnarled and twisted.

No passengers were on the train, and the railway officials and Post Office sorters escaped with a shaking. The line between Belfast and Derry was blocked, and two breakdown gangs were set to work to clear the wreckage. The train, it is stated, just escaped being projected over the embankment into the river. Traffic was being diverted via Enniskillen and Clones.

ILLICIT DISTILLATION.

NEW REGULATIONS TO BE ENFORCED.

(FROM A CORRESPONDENT.)

In consequence of the serious increase in illicit distillation—in the making and illegal sale of "poteen" and in "shebeening"—further drastic regulations are now in contemplation by the Revenue authorities and the police officials.

It was only to be expected that the enormous increase in the spirit duty would induce some of the old hands, who had put aside their distilling plants, to try again the old game, but it was not until whiskey had become so scarce that it could not be bought in out-of-the-way villages and small towns, even for money in hand, that the illicit distillation became so rife. Perhaps the worst feature connected with the latest development of illicit distillation is that it is not confined to the backward bogs and the lonely glens, as in old times it mostly was. Now the "poteen" is being made in the heart of the towns. In several of the Northern towns, and in one or two of the Southern also, detections have been made. The distilling plant was cunningly concealed, and the system of disposing of the spirits was shrewdly planned.

The new regulations, it is hoped, will stop the bad practice, or at least reduce it to much smaller limits and stop the leakage of revenue.

LONDON COCAINE CASE.

DE VEULLE COMMITTED FOR TRIAL.

Raoul Reginald de Veulle, the dress designer, who is charged with the manslaughter of Miss Billie Carleton, the actress, by supplying her with cocaine, was committed for trial by the Bow street magistrate in London yesterday.

Dr. Richards, the analyst, gave evidence of having analysed one of the cachets from the box found in the sittingroom of Miss Carleton at the Savoy Hotel. The cachet, he said, contains 13.4 grains of trional.

Mr. Huntly Jenkins (defending) then had a number of the witnesses for the prosecution recalled for the purposes of cross-examination. The first, Dr. Stewart, was asked as to his visit to the flat when he was rung up by Miss Carleton's maid, who was anxious about her. He went straight to the bedroom.

Indicating a box in front of him, Mr. Jenkins asked the doctor—I understand that you saw this box of trional in the sittingroom? The witness nodded assent.

And seeing it, what did you do with it? The witness replied that he opened it, and then put it in his pocket.

Why? It was my property, and I did not want anyone else to take it. It was a stock box of my own.

The contents of that box you had given to Miss Carleton—how long before was that? I left the box with her.

In order that she might take the cachets? Yes, as she could not sleep. Dr. Stewart added that he had purchased this trional in a box at Knightsbridge.

Asked whether he had mentioned the box prior to giving evidence, Dr. Stewart said that he mentioned it to several, including Inspector Currie and Sergeant Overton. It was wrongly reported in the papers, he added, that veronal had been found.

Dr. Stewart answered further questions as to the payments that he had made for Miss Carleton. The accounts were telephone accounts, tradespeople, the Savoy Hotel, etc.

Was she incapable of paying these herself? No, but she was very forgetful, and had had her telephone cut off.

Miss Malvina Longfellow, who was recalled for cross-examination, told how one evening in October the defendant and Miss Carleton had discussed drugs with the witness, and the witness expressed her views very plainly against it. The defendant picked up a manicure instrument, put something on it, and took a long sniff. When Miss Carleton took a sniff she immediately began to lark about.

SEVERE CROSS-EXAMINATION.

Lionel Belcher, the cinema actor, was next cross-examined by Mr. Jenkins. He said that he had never purchased any cocaine for the defendant with the object of it being given to Miss Carleton.

So far as you know, he never did give her any? I knew nothing about it.

Belcher added that the deceased woman had never disguised the fact that she took cocaine and smoked opium.

Asked about untrue statements that he made to the Coroner, Belcher said that he wanted to shield De Veulle. He also knew that he might get into a certain amount of trouble for trafficking in drugs.

Mr. Huntley Jenkins suggested that that was the real reason. "It is not," hotly asserted the witness; "my conscience was absolutely clear, but I realised that I was in a very peculiar position."

The position you wanted was the witness-box instead of the dock? Certainly not. I simply did not know what to do for the best. The witness admitted that he was living apart from his wife with a woman.

When you were buying these drugs, and selling them at a profit, was it because you were hard up? I suppose I was.

The witness admitted that he once kept a hat shop in Berner's street, where he was set up by a man.

Belcher, who protested against the personal nature of the questions, was next asked whether, when the lady with whom he lived was in a nursing home last August, he lived at a Conduit street address. He said that he had been to the address, but swore that he had never lived there. The young woman there smoked opium.

Did immoral relations exist between you? There might be a suggestion of it.

Yes or no? Well, yes.

Replying to Sir Richard Muir, the witness denied having supplied cocaine to Miss Carleton.

CASE FOR THE DEFENDANT.

Mr. Huntley Jenkins, for the defence, spoke of the irrelevant nature of much of the evidence, and suggested that there was no evidence before the Court on the manslaughter charge upon which any jury could reasonably be expected to convict. There was no evidence of the cause of death, or of any poison being found in the woman's system. He was not there to establish that Miss Carleton might have died from veronal or trional, or to criticise the conduct of Dr. Stewart, but there was no evidence that death occurred from cocaine poisoning at all. What was the most reasonable thing that Miss Carleton would be likely to take after her fatiguing day? She would take a narcotic, and cocaine could not be so classed. What was more probable than that she found trional there and took it?

The Magistrate said that he was not prepared to say that there might not be a legal question of some difficulty, but that was an important question, the decision of which would have far-reaching consequences, in view of the fact that the defendant stood for trial on a coroner's warrant, and that there was another charge of conspiracy. He felt that it was his duty to leave the question of law to a High Court Judge. On the facts, he could not say that there was no evidence to go to a jury.

The accused was then committed.

The second charge of conspiracy with Mrs. Lo Ping You to procure cocaine in contravention of the Defence of the Realm Regulations was also sent for trial. The prisoner was released on bail.

OBITUARY.

MR. W. A. COOPER.

The death occurred on the 2nd inst. of Mr. William Augustus Cooper, M.A., J.P., at his residence, Cooper's Hill, Queen's County, in his 80th year. Mr. Cooper was the eldest son of the late Rev. SEQUEL TO ACCIDENT AT GLASNEVIN CEMETERY.

At the Dublin City Sessions yesterday, before the Recorder, Christopher O'Connor, cab owner, sued the Dublin Cemeteries' Committee to recover damages for injury which he and his wife sustained through what was alleged to be the negligence of the Committee's servants. Mrs. Mary O'Connor asked for £50 compensation for personal injuries. It appeared that O'Connor was driving his cab at a funeral, and was going between the rails at the "lie-by," outside the cemetery wall, when one side of the cab sank into a hole in the ground where a pipe had been laid, but which had not been properly filled in. The driver was thrown off his seat, the passengers were thrown out of the cab, and his wife fainted. The damage to the cab was estimated at £13 12s., to the harness £1 2s. 3d., and the veterinary surgeon's bill was three guineas. The Recorder gave a decree for £23 17s. 6d. for the cabman and £15 15s. for Mrs. O'Connor. Mr. J. Rearden (instructed by Mr. M. J. Bowers), appeared for the plaintiffs; and Mr. Joseph O'Connor (instructed by Mr. Gerald Byrne) appeared for the defendants.

Dench, J.P., Newgrove avenue, was unanimously co-opted to fill the vacancy on the Council.

APPEALS.

MERCER'S CHARITABLE HOSPITAL, DUBLIN.

URGENT APPEAL FOR FUNDS.

Hon. President:—
THE RT. HON. THE LORD CHANCELLOR.
Hon. Chairman of the Committee:—
CAPTAIN SIR HAROLD NUTTING, Bart.

The financial position of the above Hospital is causing its supporters grave anxiety at present. Owing to the war and the unceasing demands on charitable people, there has been a regrettable falling off in the list of subscriptions to this long-established institution, where, since the outbreak of war, the full amount of civil work has been carried on, in addition to the establishment of a ward for twenty-five wounded soldiers. The necessary expenses have increased enormously within the last four years, and the Hospital is now faced with a very serious deficit, the bank overdraft amounting to £10,000, and the interest on this debt constitutes a serious drain on its depleted income.

In former years legacies and donations were constantly received, but of late the returns from these sources have been very small.

The Hospital is situated in the heart of the city, and there is a never-failing influx of surgical and medical cases; none are refused, and as the Report shows, the amount of valuable work carried on within its walls constitutes an almost unrivalled record of usefulness.

In order to retain the benefits of the Hospital for the poor of Dublin, as well as for the numerous cases sent there from all parts of Ireland, the present very earnest appeal for funds is made.

Subscriptions and donations will be gratefully received by any of the Members of the Committee,
BETHEL SOLOMONS, M.D. } Hon.
HENRY D. JURY, } Secretaries
or by E. TENISON COLLINS, B.L., Hon. Treasurer, 1 Dawson street, Dublin.

Three Points which YOU are asked to consider:—

1. THIS OLD DUBLIN HOSPITAL HAS FOR 184 YEARS MINISTERED TO THE SICK AND AFFLICTED THROUGHOUT IRELAND.
2. IS IT TO CONTINUE IN THE FUTURE ITS CHARITABLE WORK AND USEFULNESS?
3. THAT DEPENDS ENTIRELY UPON THE SUPPORT THE GENEROUS PUBLIC GIVE TO THIS MOST URGENT APPEAL FOR FUNDS.

We ask YOU to have the kindness to respond.
Cheques should be made payable to Mercer's Hospital, crossed "National Bank."

PUBLIC NOTICES.

THE PUBLIC HEALTH (IRELAND) ACTS, 1878 TO 1918, AND THE LABOURERS (IRELAND) ACTS.

WHEREAS, the Balrothery Rural District Council have applied to the Local Government Board for Ireland for their sanction to Supplemental Loans of (a) £5,400, (b) £1,386, and (c) £368, for the purposes of (a) completing a scheme for the Erection of Cottages under the Labourers Acts, (b) completing the Malahide Waterworks, and (c) defraying expenditure in excess of previous loan sanctioned for Providing a Cemetery at Malahide, the area of charge to be the Rural District. And, whereas, these sums, with the balances of the outstanding loans contracted by the said Council under the Sanitary Acts and the Public Health (Ireland) Acts, 1878, would exceed the assessable value for one year of the premises within the district in respect of which such moneys may be borrowed:

Now, therefore, the Local Government Board hereby give notice that they have directed their Engineering Inspector, A. D. Price, Esq., M.Inst.C.E., to hold a local inquiry in the matter of these applications, and to report to them thereon; and that the said A. D. Price will attend at the Carnegie Library, Malahide, at 10.45 o'clock a.m. on Tuesday, the 18th day of March, 1919, for the purpose of holding such inquiry.

Any ratepayer in the said area of charge objecting to any of these loans being sanctioned, may forward to the said A. D. Price a statement of his objection, addressed to him at the Office of the Local Government Board, so as to be received on or before Monday, the 17th day of March, 1919, and such objection will be taken into consideration.

NEW CHURCH TO OUR LADY OF LOURDES,

LR. GLOUCESTER STREET, DUBLIN.

A Temporary Edifice has been erected on the site secured for the New Church, which is badly needed in this locality.

It is already crowded, and the Shrine has aroused a deep spirit of Devotion to Our Lady of Lourdes, with most beneficial results among the people.

The Accommodation afforded by the Temporary Structure is inadequate. The Administrator strongly appeals to the Catholics of Dublin and of Ireland for the means to undertake the building of the New Church. The district being one of the most densely populated and poorest in the city little pecuniary aid can be expected from it.

The Holy Sacrifice of the Mass will be offered EACH WEEK for Subscribers.

Subscriptions will be thankfully received by any of the Clergy, or by

The State of Germany.

Reports from Germany continue to be very contradictory. The official wireless messages obviously are meant to paint the situation in the darkest colours, and it is just possible that German diplomacy, by playing upon the sympathy of the world, is trying to wriggle out of the trap in which it has been caught. A purely objective survey of the state of affairs in Germany is, therefore, essential. For the purposes of an impartial inquiry Germany must be regarded not merely as a conquered enemy, but also as an integral and important part of the Continent of Europe. The outlines of the general situation are well known. A National Assembly, representative of the great mass of German opinion, is sitting at Weimar. It has drawn up a Constitution by which Germany has been declared a republic, and is trying to lay the foundations of a real democracy on the ruins of Hohenzollern despotism. All over Germany it has met with fierce opposition from a well organised and determined minority. The ambassadors of Bolshevism have done their work. Bavaria is virtually a Bolshevist State, and Munich, once the home of German art and culture, now rivals Moscow as a centre of anarchical intrigue. Hamburg and the Hanseatic towns—Leipsig, Halle, even Dresden—have been the scenes of fierce struggles, and in Berlin the Spartacist group has made the administration of law almost impossible. It is now announced that, although the attempts to bring about a general strike have failed, several regiments which hitherto were loyal to the Government have gone over to the enemy. The Weimar Government has been rendered virtually impotent. To avert catastrophe, and incidentally to save his own position, Herr Scheidemann has made concessions to the Bolsheviks. It is uncertain whether the Workmen's and Soldiers' Councils are to be given political rights or not. If they are allowed to have a say in the Government, Bolshevism will flourish. A system of socialisation, comprising the coal and potash industries, has been introduced, but this may not satisfy the desires of the so-called proletariat.

In the temporary disorder inevitable after such an unheaval as that of November last the advocates of Bolshevism found the opportunity of reaping their harvest of infamy. The seeds already had been sown. Of all the conflicting parties which sprang up after the Revolution the Spartacists were the only persons who knew what they wanted. The low moral of the German people gave them their chance; they were not slow to seize it. The result has been that a handful of fanatics has thrown Germany into a state of social and economic chaos. The vast majority of Germans have taken refuge in complete apathy. They are seemingly indifferent to their fate, and possibly of the opinion that any change must be for the better. This apathy is the effect of two causes—the loss of the war and lack of food. The loss of the war came as a terrible shock to the Germans. Misled by their leaders and their Press, they were assured of victory, and the majority of them invested all their savings in the War Loan. That money is now lost to them. The uncertainty of their future, the dread of national bankruptcy, and the spectre of Bolshevism have reduced them to a low mental condition, while the lack of nourishing food has a corresponding physical effect. The average German seems to have lost his backbone. His power of resistance has gone, and his only concern is his next meal. In this condition he must inevitably lose all self-respect. His initiative, never very great, has virtually disappeared, and he is verging on that state of mind which urges him to shout with the largest crowd. In Germany to-day the largest crowd are the Bolshevists. They are the only party with a clearly defined policy. They are well organised; they hold out large rewards to those who join their ranks; and they are diabolically clever. Germany is at the crossways. One road, a difficult one, perhaps, leads to peace and comparative prosperity; the other is certainly an easy one to follow, but it leads to inevitable ruin.

The problem which faces the Peace Conference is not easy. Germany must pay; on that everyone is agreed. The French Minister of Finance, M. Klotz, has just informed the Government that a levy on capital will be necessary if France is to be able to meet her liabilities. Belgium and Serbia are in urgent need of funds; Italy has a large bill to be paid. That the Allies themselves should meet the costs of the war in their entirety is unthinkable; but, if something is not quickly done, there will be no alternative. Central Europe is starving. Whether the whole cost of the war is to be paid by Germany or not, it is essential that she shall give a large contribution towards the reparation of the damage she has wrought, and it is essential, moreover, that she shall do this willingly. Nobody wants to see the war protracted indefinitely; but, if Germany will not pay of her own accord, we shall be forced to enter the country and take what we want. This will necessitate armed intervention. So long as Germany is allowed to starve there will be no possibility of a voluntary payment of her debt. To pay she will have to work, and, without food, work is impossible. Apart from this aspect, it is the interest of every nation in Europe that Bolshevism shall be stamped out in Germany. Food is the best extinguisher of Bolshevism; starvation gives fuel to the flame. Food, therefore, is the first essential; peace is the next. A speedy peace may rally the forces of moderation in Germany. They will know definitely what obligations they have to meet, and, doubtless, will realise that it lies in their own interest to meet them as quickly and as fully as possible. Their industries will have to be reorganised, their factories put in working order, and they will have to have free access to raw materials. The situation is extremely critical, and no time should be lost in dealing with it. Prejudice and passion must give way before common-sense. Germany is sinking in the Slough of Despond, and with her is sinking her wealth. It is imperative that this wealth should be used to repair the ravages of the war; therefore, Germany must be saved.

Restriction of Rents.

The Government's Bill to extend for a period of a year after the termination of the war the duration of the Rent Restriction Act received a second reading in the House of Commons yesterday. The original measure, which was passed in December, 1915, applied only to rents that did not exceed a certain figure—in Ireland £26, in Scotland £30, and in London £35—and it provided that in these cases there should be no increase, either during the war or for six months afterwards, above the standard rent—i.e., the rent at which the house was let in August, 1914. The new Bill goes further: it affords protection to that much harassed section of the middle classes whose houses cost up to £55 per annum. No section of the community stood in more urgent need of relief. During the past year many landlords advanced the rents beyond all reasonable limits, and then, if the tenants were unable to pay, served them with notices to quit. The increase which a landlord will be able to demand now is ten per cent. of the standard rent. It is questionable whether the Bill is not too severe in this respect. The present charges for repairs and management are greatly in excess of the charges in 1914, and there is a possibility that many houses will be allowed to fall into disrepair. A committee which reported on the matter to the Reconstruction Ministry recently recommended that the maximum increase should be fixed at 25 per cent. Again, the landlord has to meet increased mortgage charges. The Bill, however, provides that the rate of interest shall not be advanced by more than ½ per cent., and then only when it shall not exceed five per cent. Some leading trade union officials who gave evidence before the committee agreed that an increase of 33 per cent. in rent would not be excessive in some cases, and suggested that, if that figure were adopted, it should be made in two or more stages so as to avoid industrial unrest. We have referred to this aspect of the question because we believe that an increase of only ten per cent. will inflict hardship on a large number of landlords who have invested their savings in house property, and have not attempted to exact from the tenants more than a fair return for their money. Mr. Fisher, who had charge of the measure yesterday, said that above all things the Government did not want to hamper the building trade. The restriction of rents, however, is bound to have a very decided tendency in that direction. It stands to reason that a commercial rent could not be obtained on new houses in competition with similar existing houses built at a lower cost and restricted in rent. Houses now under construction are excluded from the scope of the Bill. The only way out of the difficulty is that the Government should expedite the State-assisted housing schemes by every means possible. When they are compl there will be sufficient accommodati permit of the removal of all restricti and open competition will once determine the letting value of a h Meanwhile tenants will welcome temporary relief which the new Bill g them.

Trinity College Fellowship.

Trinity College, Dublin, effects its re lutions quietly. Without even a in the newspapers it has abandon practice which had nearly three centu of severe tradition behind it. By the of a majority of the Fellows the Fel ship of the College has been confer without examination, on Dr. John J Professor of Geology in Dublin Univer and one of the Empire's most distingui men of science. The Fellowship exami tion was famous as one of the strictest of learning in the world. It was annually, and lasted for twelve days. reward of success attracted the brilliant brains in Ireland; but very candidates won the prize at the attempt. This examination has been the gateway to Fellowship for at least years. For the first fifty years of College's life the Fellows seem to been "nominated" or "chosen." In 1 however, it is recorded that George L lock was "little inferior in answering William Raymund." In the following "the great Irish Rebellion interrupted business of the College"; but after 1 with the exception of a few persons were admitted "by mandate of the L Deputy" or by King's Letters, the Fell were elected by examination. There no examination in 1691, when the Coll was occupied as a barrack by the soldi of James II. In 1798 the election postponed till October on account of Rebellion raging in the country." W these and a very few other exceptions, solemn test has been held every year more than two centuries "on twelve preceding Trinity Sunday." In days learning was more highly esteemed th now the Fellowship examination was event of some national importance. late as the 'forties of the ninete century the viva voce part (then condu in Latin) was reported verbatim in Dublin newspapers. The last examina for Fellowship was held in 1915. In following three years no Fellows elected, partly on account of the war a partly because the College was meditati reform. Now the ancient system has ceived its coup de grâce from Dr. Jol election by a Fellows' vote. Its end inevitable for many reasons. The curr culum had become too narrow for College's academic needs: it produced classical scholars, mathematicians, metaphysicians. The best young men begun to be unwilling to devote their critical years to the intense study the ordeal required. Under the new pl the College will select the men whom needs from a wider field of intellect attainment; and it has made an adm able beginning with Dr. Joly. We conf to a sentimental regret for the passing the old system. It had come to be indefensible anachronism, but—

SARGENT'S PORTRAIT OF PRESIDENT WILSON.

At last I have had the long-looked-for of beholding Mr. Sargent's portrait of Preside Wilson where it hangs in one of the roo (XX.) devoted to pictures given or bequeat by Sir Hugh Lane in the National Gallery.

It is a fine portrait, instinct with vitality gesture is so happy that one feels it must press a characteristic movement as Mr. Wils turns in response to a question. Knowing man as we all do now by his public utteranc so remarkable, amongst other things, for brevity and clear simplicity of phrase—we we recognise him here.

The fine head, on which the artist has lavi his skill, is painted with vigour, breadth, much delicacy: the broad and simple lighti admirably suited to give full value to its mass form, with its delicate modulations. The pai ing of the eyes is a tour de force; the eye-gla are there, but, being rimless, are only ne tively perceptible in the full light, the holder explaining their presence, and the co quent diminution of that vital accent wh such eyes clearly seen would have given, though in spite of the glass the form and exp sion of the left eye leaves a clear and abidi impression. The fingers are large and w formed, and evidently painted with delight: right hand itself seems rather small, unle left is too large; but with so much to deli and charm us in the work this is hardly mentioning.

Dublin is, indeed, happy to be the reposi of such a portrait, painted at a time that make it always of great interest in the wor for Dublin is to be its home, although I un stand that on the 17th inst. it will be drawn from view for some weeks, while Gallery will be closed for re-hanging, Sir H Lane's pictures taking their places in the gen collection which so many of them were cho to enrich and adorn.

The permanent home of President Wilso portrait is, however, to be amongst the mod pictures in the Municipal Art Gallery, wher will be that first-rate example of Sargent's which Sir Hugh so long desired to acquire that collection. Let us hope that before a gallery will be built fit to show this the other fine pictures in. Meanwhile, we only be thankful that nothing prevented being exhibited in the National Gallery, wh it looks so particularly well beside the lar Gainsborough landscape.

The history of the picture will have inte beyond that felt only by personal friends, think. Early in April, 1915, on the eve of departure for America, Sir Hugh Lane decid on the occasion of a forthcoming Red Cro Sale, to offer £10,000 for a full-length portrait, the distinguished American artist, Mr. Joh Sargent, R.A., would consent to paint one the benefit of the Red Cross Funds. Just bef he started on the fatal voyage home, he cabl from New York that his offer be conveyed to Red Cross Committee. Owing to the tragic clusion of the voyage, much delay necessar ensued before this wish could be carried and when arrangements for doing so were pleted it remained to name the subject of portrait. This responsibility devolved on governors and guardians of the National Galle as Sir Hugh's residuary legatees. The hap inspiration to ask President Wilson came Miss Purser, the well-known Dublin portra painter, who is one of the governors; the sug tion was unanimously and gladly endorse her colleagues, and President Wilson consent The choice was such a happy one from ev point of view that we must all feel indebted Miss Purser more than it is easy to expre The idea would have entirely pleased the don no other choice could have been as welcome the artist, and it has added a gift of strik historical as well as artistic value to the rare gifts with which Sir Hugh Lane has riched Dublin.

I offer my heartiest congratulations to Purser on her part in this business.

S. C. HARRISON.

DR. JOHN JOLY, F.T.C.D., F.R.S.

By the vote of a majority of the Fello Senior and Junior, Dr. John Joly, F.R.S., been elected a Fellow of Trinity College, Dub Dr. Joly has been Professor of Geology Mineralogy in Dublin University since He is a Vice-President of the Royal Dub Society. The Royal Medal of the Royal Soci was conferred on him in 1910, and the Bo Medal of the Royal Dublin Society in the lowing year. By his election one of the brilliant and distinguished men of science Europe is added to the body of the Fellows Trinity College, Dublin.

LIEUTENANT-COLONEL SIR CHARLES BURTCHAELL.

At a meeting of the President and Fellows the Royal College of Physicians of Ireland yesterday, Lieutenant-General Sir Char Burtchaell, K.C.B., C.M.G., was admitted Honorary Fellow of the College.

A very severe snowstorm raged all day o the East of Scotland. The country was cove from three to seven inches deep last nig The storm continues.

LONDON CORRESPONDENCE.

59 FLEET STREET, LONDON,
FRIDAY NIGHT.

The King intends to do his share in providing work during the reconstruction period, for he has decided to have nearly the whole of the Royal Mews at Buckingham Palace pulled down and re-built. There is little need to make provision for a large number of horses now, but space is wanted for the fleet of motor cars, to take their place. The great building in Buckingham Palace road, presenting a dead wall to the street, known as the Riding School, will disappear, and a new wing of the Palace will be built to house the domestic establishment. The plans are to be submitted to the King very shortly.

It is expected that President Wilson will arrive at Brest on Friday next, and proceed without delay to Paris. It was the intention of the President to pay a visit to the devastated regions of Belgium before he left for the United States, and it is now understood that he will make the visit some time after the next plenary sitting of the Peace Conference. With the recovery of M. Clemenceau and the activity of Mr. Lloyd George and the return of President Wilson, rapid progress of events may be looked for in Paris.

The restrictions imposed by the war are going one by one. In the Commons today Mr. Bridgeman made the welcome announcement that it is proposed to allow unrestricted importation into this country of foodstuffs from all parts of the British Empire. The relaxation does not at present apply to foreign countries, but in this case raw materials are to be freed.

The Speaker, in conformity with custom, stated that a member of the House, Mr. Peirce Beasley, East Kerry, had been committed to Mountjoy Prison to await his trial by courtmartial for a breach of the Defence of the Realm Regulations.

The Increase of Rents and Mortgage Interest (Restrictions) Bill, which has already been fully explained to the House, came up for second reading. Sir Thomas Whittaker gave a modified approval to the measure, but thought that the agitation against owners was both foolish and unreasonable. There was, he said, a good deal to be said in favour of the small property-owner. The real remedy of the existing state of things was to get on with the Government's housing scheme. Mr. Lorden feared that the Bill would restrict building operations. Speaking generally, the Bill was welcomed, and it received a second reading without a division.

A group representing the newly-formed Middle Class Union has already been provisionally formed in the House of Commons, and half-a-dozen members of it gave notice last evening of amendments to the Increase of Rental Bill. These members are Major Pretyman Newman, Mr. Kennedy Jones, Commander Locker-Lampson, Colonel Lloyd Graeme, Sir R. Brittain, and Colonel Grant Morden. Their amendments aim at making the operation of the Bill retrospective, to December 25th last, instead of the 4th inst.; extending the period of operation to two years instead of one after the close of the war; and raising the limits of the rental affected in the Metropolitan area to £75, and elsewhere from £42 (£48 in Scotland) to £65.

It is understood that the new Committees which are to be set up to carry out legislative work at the House of Commons will make several departures from the old style. Meeting twice a week, it is intended to hold two sittings each day. The morning sittings will be from eleven to one and the afternoon sittings from four to six. If this arrangement should work satisfactorily, it is estimated that a big Bill can be got ready for the report stage in the Whole House by five or six weeks' time. The first of these Grand Committees will start operations on Thursday, when it is expected that Dr. Addison, if he has recovered from his illness, will preside. This Committee is to deal with the proposed Ministry of Health.

The municipal reformers have once again secured the victory in the elections for the London County Council, and, though Labour made a very determined effort to capture a number of seats, it succeeded in obtaining only fifteen—a very long way off the number it hoped to secure. The municipal reformers have a majority over all parties of twelve, but they will have the right to appoint a number of aldermen, so that a working majority is assured. The election is one of the greatest importance, for the newly-elected body will have the control of many of the vast schemes associated with reconstruction. The polls were extraordinarily small. There are 1,611,995 electors for the 61 constituencies, giving an average of about 26,000 apiece. Contests took place in 34 constituencies, but in only one instance did as many as 10,000 voters exercise the franchise, and in two or three cases the number was under 3,000. The comparative failure of the Labour Party in these circumstances is all the more remarkable, since, if there had been any real enthusiasm for their cause, they could have carried every seat that they contested.

Many people were looking forward to making a holiday at Easter this year as a relaxation after the war, but it seems that many of the would-be holiday-makers will have to stay at home, for the railway companies announce that there will be no extra trains or provision made for holidays. There is a great shortage of rolling stock, due mainly to the military requirements, while the production of rolling stock is still at a very low ebb.

Mr. Ronald MacNeill will ask on Monday if the Foreign Secretary has any official information as to a resolution having been adopted by the American House of Representatives on the subject of the government of Ireland, and, if so, will he make a formal protest against interference by a foreign Legislature in the domestic affairs of the United Kingdom.

At Montagu House, the headquarters of the Ministry of Labour, Sir Stephenson Kent yesterday received a deputation from the Irish Clerical Workers' Union in reference to the remuneration and conditions of the staffs of the Irish Labour Exchanges. The question was fully gone into, but, being a departmental matter, it was decided that it should be kept private, and that anything for publication should be issued by the Press Bureau.

WRECK OF A BRITISH TROOP TRAIN.

SEVEN MORE DEAD.

An Amiens telegram, dated Thursday, states: Seven more bodies have been extricated from the wreckage of the British troop train, and many injured, and in a critical condition, have been taken to hospital. The collision between the British leave train and the second troop train occurred at the moment when the latter had already entered the tunnel, thus rendering the task of rescuing the injured more difficult. The work of clearing the line has not yet been completed. Inquiry has shown that the disaster was due to the breaking of the coupling of a German coach recently handed over to the Allies.

CHARITABLE DONATIONS AND BEQUESTS.

THE SECRETARIES' SALARIES.

We learn that since the presentation of the Report of the Commissioners of Charitable Donations and Bequests for Ireland for the year 1917, referred to in our columns yesterday, the Lords Commissioners of His Majesty's Treasury, by a minute, dated 31st December, 1918, have acceded to the proposal of the Commissioners that the salary of the Joint Secretaries should be restored to the scale obtaining before 1916—viz.: £600, rising after five years to £700.

The Queen has appointed Sir Edward William Wallington to be Treasurer to Her Majesty, in room of the Hon. Sir Alexander Nelson Hood, resigned; and Mr. Harry Lloyd Verney to be her Private Secretary, in place of Sir Edward Wallington.

FROM "THE TIMES" OF TO-DAY.

(BY SPECIAL ARRANGEMENT WITH THE PROPRIETORS OF THE TIMES.)

PRESIDENT WILSON AND THE UNITED STATES.

The Times Washington Correspondent, telegraphing under Thursday's date, says—The controversy between President Wilson and the Senate on the League of Nations seems to be shaping towards an eventual compromise. The Republican Senators insist that, except for a few of their number, they approve of a League of Nations in principle, and that their opposition is directed to the Covenant, as it has been framed in Paris. It is suggested that the President himself may propose alterations in the present constitution, when the subject next comes up for consideration at the Conference, and that in that event he will find that the attitude of the Senate will have strengthened his hand in an endeavour to secure a treaty which will be acceptable to American opinion. In the meantime, The Times Washington Correspondent continues, the controversy is likely, until it dies down, and while the country waits for the Conference to finish its work, to descend to a more popular and picturesque level than heretofore. One sees that from the telegram that the new Republican Senator, Mr. Medill McCormick, of Illinois, has sent to a club in Chicago, which chided him for opposing the President. Mr. McCormick, one of the leaders of the rising generation of politicians, possesses more than an ordinary knowledge and experience of European affairs, and during the war has been one of the staunchest supporters of the Allied cause. He wrote:—"You are for the constitution of the League of Nations as presented to the Paris Conference. I am not. Since you are for the proposed constitution, you approve of giving the British Empire six votes in the League to one vote for the United States. Upon what ground do you justify giving the British Empire, in proportion to its self-governing population, twelve times the voting strength of the people of the United States? Is one Englishman twelve times as important as one American?" Mr. McCormack argues that, under the terms of the covenant, there is nothing definite to prevent the United States from being overrun by Oriental labour, and Asiatic or European Powers from getting pieds-a-terre in Latin America. The Senate, he concludes, must oppose the effort that is being made to impose upon us the constitution of a super-State, an international confederation, which would extinguish our national importance and our American liberties.

THE SPA DEADLOCK.

Observers with experience, says The Times, will not be tempted to attach extravagant importance to the deadlock at Spa. Scheidemann's Government have taken it upon themselves to reject an essential part of the conditions upon which the Allies offered to furnish Germany with foodstuffs. The Allies required the surrender of German mercantile shipping to their control for the purpose of revictualling the world. The demand does not seem to be unreasonable in the circumstances which exist, but Germany has refused it. The immediate results of their arrogance seem to suggest that Herr Scheidemann and his colleagues, or some of them, are deliberately "riding for a fall." If they find their domestic position untenable, and desire to perish with a "beau geste," their haughty refusal to take food for Germany, except upon their own terms, becomes intelligible. Germany, we imagine, will insist on having the food from somebody. If the unbending patriotism of Herr Scheidemann and Count Rantzau forbids them to sign the only possible conditions on which she can get it, she will accept it as gladly from their successors as she would have accepted it from them—more gladly even should the new Ministers have any real influence over the popular heart and mind. If, on the other hand, the present Ministry intend clinging to office, and succeed in their intention, they will have to eat humble pie at Spa. Germany has got to accept the terms of the Allies. These are not going to be altered either to gratify her untamed national pride or to relieve the domestic difficulties and soothe the amour propre of the Scheidemann Government.

THE NEW GERMAN FRONTIERS.

Mr. F. H. Simmonds, in the course of a despatch to The Times from Paris, says:—American sympathy and influence in Paris leans towards the accepting of the following solution of the Rheinisch boundaries questions. First, the annexation, without reservation, of the whole Saar coal area, amounting to some thousand square miles, and containing some 300,000 inhabitants. Secondly, the valuation of this region in terms of money, and the subtraction of this sum from the total damage claim which is to be brought by France against Germany. In a word, the Saar coal region is to be regarded, purely and simply, as a payment by Germany for destruction, wanton and indefensible destruction, in Northern France, and France is to accept this payment as a partial discharge of German obligations. Unless all signs fail, this is to be the Western solution. Pending the discharge of all her obligations, Germany will have to consent to an occupation of her Rhine territories, comparable to her occupation of the Eastern departments of France after 1871 until France had paid the indemnity imposed upon her by Bismarck. During that period of occupation the Rhine territories are to be separated from Germany, and to be permitted to have their own political organisations, and their own political life, but not as a part of Germany. Instead, they are to unite in an independent State of their own, in which order will be assured by Allied armies of occupation, and they will be equally guaranteed against the dangers of German revolution, and against the possibilities of annexation by France or Belgium. In a word, they become for that indefinite period of Allied occupation, which may last for a decade, a joint mandatory of all the nations who subscribed to the League, and during this whole time Germany will end at the Rhine. France, while she is recovering from the wound of the last war, will have nothing to fear from a new German attack, and French and Belgian restoration can proceed without any hesitation resulting from German anxieties.

GERMANY'S MORAL SICKNESS.

The Times Special Correspondent at The Hague, telegraphing under date of March 5th, discusses the cause of Germany's present moral sickness. He says:—The root of the whole trouble is the fact that the Ebert-Scheidemann and Erzberger Administration is as responsible for the war and its outcome as any of the Kings and Princes whom the so-called November Revolution has overthrown. These opportunists do not represent the "German people" in Mr. Wilson's sense of the term. The Weimar Assembly is merely the old Berlin Reichstag with an inverted Opposition, and the Ministry attends and speaks for the old system as directly as any administration during the war. Despite all "superannuation" schemes, the old bureaucratic machine is still in being and working at full pressure, and the Majority Socialist Deputies figure among all these cranks and levers as a sort of dummy flywheel.

LIQUOR CONTROL TO BE RELAXED.

We understand, says The Times, that a sensible relaxation of the restrictions in force under the Central Control Board (Liquor Traffic) may be expected shortly. The whole question of removing the more severe restrictions has been closely considered, and the local authorities in the larger industrial centres have been consulted. The present expectation is that there will be an extension of the evening hours during which the sale of liquor is permitted in public bars, and for the supply of liquor with food in hotels and restaurants. Holders of off-licences will, it is understood, be permitted greater facilities for the acceptance and delivery of orders. The question is also under consideration whether authority should not be granted to local licensing authorities to relax the regulations governing hours of opening and closing on special occasions.

VISCOUNT MASSEREENE.

Viscount Massereene and Ferrard is gazetted a Q.M.G., and retains the temporary rank of Lieutenant-Colonel while so employed, says The Times.

DIFFICULTIES AT SPA.

GERMANY'S NEW DEMAND.

MERCANTILE FLEET WITHHELD.

MR. LLOYD GEORGE AND PEACE PRELIMINARIES.

THE FUTURE GERMAN ARMY.

OFFICIAL REPORT.

The following official communiqué, dated Friday, has been received from Paris:—

The Supreme War Council met to-day at 3 p.m.

Information was given as to the interruption of the negotiations at Spa regarding the surrender of the German Merchant Fleet, and Mr. Lansing submitted a proposal in regard to German cables.

At the request of the Italian delegates, it was decided to appoint an Inter-Allied Military Commission to inquire into the incidents at Laibach.

The discussion as to revictualling the States formerly included in Austria-Hungary was continued and completed.

Mr. Lloyd George addressed the Council in regard to the military terms of the preliminaries of peace with Germany.

The next meeting will take place to-morrow at 3 o'clock.

CAUSES OF THE DEADLOCK.

According to a Berlin telegram, writes the Press Association's Amsterdam Correspondent, the negotiations at Spa, regarding the provisioning of Germany, the delay in handing over Germany's Mercantile Fleet, and the financial agreements in connection therewith, have been broken off, after the Entente had insisted upon the immediate delivery of the German Mercantile Fleet, without undertaking any binding obligations to supply Germany with food until next harvest.

The Press Association's Special Correspondent in Paris, writing on Friday, says—The deadlock at Spa is the centre of all attention for the moment, but it would be incorrect to imagine that because the Allied delegates have returned from Spa negotiations have been broken off. The delegates, both Allied and enemy, have returned to their respective countries for further instruction as to how to act in the new situation which has arisen. The difficulty is briefly this:—In the original armistice terms, it will be remembered, there was a clause saying that the Allies proposed to feed Germany. In a later renewal of the armistice a clause was added demanding the surrender of the German merchant ships, to which the enemy agreed. We have, therefore, been expecting the surrender to take place almost immediately. But the Germans now refuse to comply with this clause, on the ground that, unless the Allies make a definite promise to feed them until the next harvest, they would be surrendering the only channel through which they could obtain food should the Allies choose to leave Germany unfed. In other words, the enemy now refuses to surrender his commercial fleet, which he promised to surrender, unless the Allies make a bargain by giving more formal promises regarding the feeding of Germany in return. I understand that the Allies have been in telephonic communication with the German delegates at Spa on this matter, and the Allied delegates who have returned here are also giving their point of view. The British representatives are Sir William Wiseman, Admiral Hope, and Mr. Meynard Keynes, of the Treasury. The Commissioners of all the Allies who have been in Germany, appear to be agreed as to the necessity of feeding Germany immediately if Bolshevism is to be avoided, but obviously the Allies are unwilling to bargain with a defeated enemy as to how much food they shall send, especially, as, according to certain French circles, the enemy is demanding two and a half million tons of provisions before the next harvest. The Supreme Economic Council held a special meeting this morning in order to discuss the question, and it is understood that the Supreme War Council has had the matter before it, inasmuch as it has a distinct bearing on the terms of the armistice and the preliminary peace. In British quarters it is considered not improbable that a decision will be reached this evening, but, at the latest, the whole difficulty should be solved by the early part of next week. The British point of view appeared to be that, while we cannot allow the Germans to elevate our original intention to feed them into a contract, they must, nevertheless, be fed; and this view is shared by our other Allies, the Americans being inclined to be more lenient than the French, who are stricter in their demands.

A later message says:—The discussion of the Spa difficulty has been postponed until to-morrow afternoon.

The Liberté says:—The German delegates at Spa demanded that the Allies shall enter into formal pledges guaranteeing that from now to the next harvest Germany shall receive two and a half million tons of foodstuffs of every kind. The Allies were, naturally, unable to make such extravagant promises, for they have, as a matter of fact, to provide for their own revictualling and that of neutral States. In these circumstances, the Germans refused to give up the Fleet, and the negotiations were then broken off.

A GERMAN VERSION.

A Berlin telegram to the Frankfurter Zeitung says:—According to a communication from the Armistice Commission, the German Government instructed the negotiators at Spa to hand over the German Merchant Fleet to the Allies only on condition that the provisioning of Germany was guaranteed by a treaty of a binding nature. At the last sitting in connection with the revictualling of Germany, the German delegates declared that Germany could not hand over its Fleet unless the Allies promised to send food supplies to Germany. He said that up to the present Germany had not received a single ton of food-stuffs. That was why the German point of view was that their mercantile fleet would be delivered up to the Allies as soon as the delivery of food supplies was guaranteed by contract. Herr Braun, Under-Secretary of State, declared that he considered it improbable that the German Government would give way on this point. As the last discussion seemed to have no chance of success, the negotiations were broken off, and both parties left Spa. The rupture of the negotiations on the part of the Sub-Commissioners on the questions of finance, food-stuffs, and navigation does not affect the negotiations of the Armistice Commission at Spa, which still continue.

MR. LLOYD GEORGE'S CONFERENCE.

MORE STRINGENT TERMS FOR GERMANY.

The Press Association's Paris Correspondent, telegraphing on Friday, says:—Mr. Lloyd George, M. Clemenceau, and Colonel House held a meeting this morning, which had perhaps more important results than any other private meeting since the opening of the Conference. The discussion on the difficulty which has arisen at Spa has been postponed until to-morrow afternoon. Mr. Lloyd George's amended proposals on the disarmament of Germany were considered to-day, and accepted. At its meeting this afternoon the Inter-Allied Supreme War Council approved, in principle, Mr. Lloyd George's proposal compelling Germany, in the preliminary Peace Treaty, to keep an army of only fifteen divisions, solely composed of professional soldiers, enrolled by voluntary enlistment for twelve years. The Military Committee has been instructed to draft the text of clauses containing these provisions, which will be submitted to the Supreme War Council on Monday. The Council also decided to increase the food supply of German Austria from 800 tons to 3,000 tons a day. Mr. Hoover, United States Food Controller, declared, in this connection, that there was enough food to supply Europe, but that the means of transport were insufficient. The future of German cables was referred to the examination of the Juridical Committee. To-morrow the Supreme War Council will appoint an Inter-Allied Military Committee with instructions to investigate the Italian and Jugo-Slav incidents at Laibach. The Council will also have to come to a decision regarding interruption of the final Armistice negotiations at Spa, in connection with the handing over of the German merchant fleet, upon which subject Lord Robert Cecil to-day made a plain statement of facts.

Mr. Lloyd George's amended proposals on the disarmament of Germany, which were discussed and adopted by the Supreme War Council this afternoon, are far more stringent than those proposed by the military chiefs themselves. They were strongly supported by M. Clemenceau, and will reduce the size of the German Army to a much greater extent than had previously been expected. It is understood that at to-day's meeting between Mr. Lloyd George, M. Clemenceau, and Colonel House, the general outstanding questions were discussed. Each statesman outlined the attitude his Government would adopt towards them. It is understood that the Allies have decided to send food to Austria at the rate of 3,000 tons a day, commencing immediately, through Fiume and Trieste. This will be in addition to 80,000 tons now awaiting transportation at Trieste. In Italian quarters it is stated that constant negotiations are in progress between the Italians and the Serbians with reference to the closing of the Jugo-Slav frontier. It is probable that a settlement will be reached, and the frontier re-opened on Monday next.

THE KINMEL PARK AFFAIR.

CANADIAN SOLDIERS' OUTBREAK.

OFFICIAL STATEMENT.

All was quiet yesterday at Kinmel Park Camp, North Wales. It was officially stated that the casualties were five killed, twenty-one wounded. An inquest on the victims was opened yesterday, and adjourned until next week. Brigadier-General M. A. Colquhoun in a statement yesterday morning said no attack was made on officers, who were treated by the men with the greatest courtesy. I myself, he said, went in and out among the men freely. Some of them actually put down loot in order to salute me, and then picked up the loot again.

Reports of damage to the camp which have appeared are greatly exaggerated. Some fifty or sixty men got out of hand, and attacked some canteens. The men in one camp, anticipating danger, armed themselves, and, contrary to express orders, fired. That was on Wednesday, when the fatalities occurred. The girls' camp was not attacked, and, as a matter of fact, the girls were treated with the utmost chivalry. No man entered the girls' bedrooms while they were occupied. One man raised a red flag in an attempt to introduce Bolshevism. He was shot.

Sir Richard Turner, Chief of the Canadian General Staff, came to camp by train, not by aeroplane, and visited each of the eleven camp commandants, who told the men that arrangements had been made for their speedy return to Canada. The statement was received with loud cheers.

In conversation with the Press Association's Abergale Correspondent, a Canadian officer at the camp said a contributory factor in connection with the damage committed on private business premises during Wednesday's rioting was the fact that some persons trading near the camp had been in the habit of charging exorbitant prices. With reference to the reports of attacks on W.A.A.C.'s and girl workers, the officer stated these were confined to two girls who stepped out with the intention of stemming the rush of the raiders.

OFFICIAL STATEMENT.

The Ministry of the Overseas Military Forces of Canada issued the following statement in respect of the incidents at Kinmel Camp:—

In view of the splendid discipline uniformly maintained by the Canadian troops since the beginning of the war, in England and France, the incident at Kinmel Park is very deeply regretted at the headquarters of the Overseas Military Forces of Canada. It is considered that in comparison with others, the discipline amongst Canadian troops has been of a high order. It is greatly regretted that some of the reports of the incident have been exaggerated. Immediately after the armistice Kinmel was secured as a concentration area through which Canadian troops passed on their way to Canada, being situated convenient to Liverpool, their embarking port. There all documentation is completed, and the troops sorted into drafts, according to their destination in Canada. Considering the shortage of shipping, the Canadian authorities have congratulated themselves upon the splendid record which has been made, on the whole, in despatching troops to Canada. In the month of February, however, the Ministry of Shipping were unable to furnish sufficient ships to carry out the programme as promised to the Canadians. Owing to the programme in February and early in March having fallen short by fully one-third, there occurred a "backing-up" from Kinmel Park through the areas in England and through to France. This has caused very great disappointment to Canadian soldiers who have been overseas for periods ranging up to four years or more without leave to their homes. The withdrawal of some ships and the postponement of sailings of others from time to time, particularly after the soldiers had been documentised and medically boarded, based on the shipping allocated, has been very trying to the drafts, and this is what, it is considered, led chiefly to the disturbances which occurred.

Immediately upon the matter being reported to the Chief of the General Staff, Lieutenant-General Sir Richard Turner, V.C., K.C.B., he went to Kinmel Park and addressed the men in fifteen different places. They seemed to appreciate his explanations, and there are not likely to be any further disturbances.

There are at Kinmel Park approximately 15,000 all ranks, who have been despatched there as being the last step before boarding ship for Canada. Had the number of men been able to embark in February according to the programme, which it was confidently thought could be carried out, the trouble would not have occurred. But the shipping situation, owing to strikes and for other reasons, is admitted to be an extremely difficult matter to control. It is, however, hoped by the Canadian authorities that there will not be a recurrence of the delays which have hitherto taken place. It is not attempted in the slightest degree to excuse the misconduct of the men who took part in the disturbance. Many of the offenders have already been placed under arrest, who, with others involved, will be rigorously dealt with.

During the disturbance there was a certain amount of damage done, and it was discovered that civilians were concerned. Up to the present twelve of these civilians have been arrested, and handed over to the civil authorities. During the disturbance there were killed three rioters and two men on picket duty. There were twenty-one wounded, of whom two were officers. There is no foundation for the report that a major, who is a V.C., has been either killed or injured.

THE INQUEST OPENED.

The Flintshire Coroner opened an inquest at Kinmel Park Hospital yesterday on the five victims of Wednesday's rioting.

The Coroner said that at that period he did not think that it would be advisable to take any evidence beyond such as would enable him to issue his certificates for the five bodies to be interred. After that he proposed to adjourn the inquiry until next Thursday at Rhyl.

The victims were:—Private David Gillen, 86th Canadian Infantry, aged 20, of Florence, Cape Breton, Nova Scotia, who had a brother at Ripon, Yorkshire; Private Jack Hickman, Canadian Reserve Artillery, aged 21, of Dorchester, New Brunswick, who had come from France as a hospital casualty; Corporal Joseph Young, 52nd Canadian Infantry, aged 36; Private William Lyne Haney, Canadian Reserve Artillery, aged 22, of Tallot, Alberta; and William Transhawich, Canadian Reserve artillery, aged 30.

The inquest was then adjourned.

BREACHES OF THE LAWS OF WAR.

Writing from Paris on Friday, the Press Association's Paris Correspondent says:—The Commission on Breaches of the Laws of War sat for seven hours yesterday. It is understood that its report, which should be finished to-morrow night, contains recommendations to the effect that the Peace Conference should be entitled to make special regulations for the punishment of (1) those responsible for making war; (2) those responsible for violation of treaties existing before the war; (3) those responsible for acts of cruelty and barbarity during the war. The report will contain full explanations of the difficulties in the way of the punishment of individuals, especially in the first two classes, but it is hoped that the Commission's recommendations in regard to those guilty of cruelty will ensure strict justice being done.

GERMANY'S FUTURE ARMY.

Friday's Paris Temps, referring to the question of Germany's future effectives, says:—At first the maintenance of an Army of 200,000 men, recruited by conscription, was considered, but the solution which now seems to be most in favour would only authorise a much smaller Army—a third of that which was originally anticipated—would stipulate that it should be composed entirely of professional soldiers, voluntarily enlisted. The object of this modification is said to be to prevent Germany from training a very large number of recruits. It is objected that an Army of professional soldiers would constitute a nucleus of non-commissioned officers which would be in readiness for a large Army. But to this, the anti-conscriptionists reply that, in any case, the Germans could train non-commissioned officers in a very short time.

THE ARMY OF THE RHINE.

The War Office last night announced, by direction of the Secretary of State for War, that the cavalry regiments and infantry battalions comprised in the Army of the Rhine are as follows:—

London Division—Royal Fusiliers, Middlesex Regt., East Surreys, R.W. Surreys. Light Division—Rifle Brigade, King's Royal Rifle Corps, Royal Irish Rifles, Royal Irish Regt., and London Rifles. Other units comprise five battalions of cyclists, two brigades of tanks, thirty-three squadrons of the Royal Air Force, Artillery, and Engineers.

COAL COMMISSION.

THE INSPECTION OF MINES.

RAILWAYS AND THE QUESTION OF TRANSPORT.

MINERS' DEMAND AND THE IRON TRADE.

The fourth sitting of the Coal Mines Commission was held yesterday in the King's Robing Room, House of Lords, under the presidency of Mr. Justice Sankey. Prior to the calling of evidence, members of the Commission asked for a return, showing selling prices, profits, wages, and hours over a number of years; also the total amount of excess profits paid, and, in addition, the conditions of wages, work, prices, and profits in America.

The Chairman promised that those particulars would be given as far as possible.

Mr. Thomas Harry Mottram, Inspector of Mines for the North Midland Division of Yorkshire, gave details of hours worked in the mines in his area. He said that on the average fifteen minutes or thereabouts were spent on the surface of the colliery works in getting to the cage. He had worked it out that the average time for lowering in the cage, and for coming up, was forty-four minutes each way. At some of the collieries the winding took sixty minutes each way.

ACCIDENTS IN MINES.

In further examination, the witness said that there were cases in which it took ninety-eight minutes each way to get men into and up the pit.

Mr. Smillie—That shaft must be ten miles deep. (Laughter.) In Derbyshire the average number of hours down the pits was eight hours twenty-eight minutes, in Nottinghamshire eight hours forty-nine minutes, and in Yorkshire nine hours eight minutes.

Dealing with accidents in mines, the witness said that there were fewer accidents for the first hour after a man started work than in the subsequent hours that he was employed.

In answer to Mr. Evan Williams, the witness said that if a man speeded up he was running a greater risk of accident. In his opinion, if the hours of work were reduced, it would have no material effect upon the question of accident. The risk of a man was obviously less if he did not stay at the face for as many hours.

Replying to Sir Leo Chiozza Money, the witness said that he thought that possibly, if there was a better development of mines they would be in a position to give a greater output. In some cases, no doubt, the mines were not developed because the owners had not the capital. Either they had not got the means to develop, or they thought development unnecessary.

Sir Leo—If you had a unified control of the mines you could have them all brought up-to-date? Yes, you could have, if the money was forthcoming. The output had fallen during the war, which, no doubt, was due to the most physically fit miners going to the war.

Do you notice in the estimates, which have been framed on the reduction of output based on the miners' demands, than the starting point has been taken, not on the normal output before, but on the abnormal output during the war? I cannot say that I have noticed that.

If that is so, do you think that that is a fair way of making the calculation? I cannot say; but it would, no doubt, be proper to take the normal output as a basis. I believe it is the fact that many anticipated that the establishment of an eight hours' day would mean a reduction of output. I believe there was a reduction for a time. Apparently the reduction in output of 20 per cent. resulting from a six hours' day had been calculated on the abnormal output of the war.

Sir Leo—If that is so, does it not discount the whole of this hypothetical prediction?

The Witness—I cannot say; but if you go on reducing the hours you will eventually get no coal at all.

THE INSPECTION OF MINES.

On the question of the inspection of mines, the witness said that with the staff at his disposal it was impossible to make an absolutely complete inspection of the mines in the area which he was over. It was possible for his staff to make such inspection as was required by the Home Office, but if by inspection was meant that all parts of the mine must be inspected, then they should require a greater number of inspectors.

Mr. Smillie—Do you mean that if all parts of the mines were inspected it would be about once in fifty years? I do not say that. It is possible that if you increased the number of Government inspectors defects that now exist in the mines would be remedied. It is impossible to go down any mine without finding something.

Questioned by Mr. Webb, the witness said that the inspection had nothing to do with the substitution of new machinery for old, or with the question of productivity. Although he had often said to managers that they ought to have better roads and tubs, they had replied that they would not be able to provide those and make a profit.

Mr. Webb—What that meant was, that if there was more productivity for the benefit of the nation they would get less profit? Yes.

In reply to Sir Leo, the witness said that probably about one-third of the mines had not got up-to-date plants.

Sir Leo—We have been told of immense profits made during the war. If only one-fourth of that sum had been applied to improvements, would not there have been a better output from the mines? Yes, of course, if the mines had been developed and put in a condition to produce more coal.

Mr. Hodges—In Northumberland and Durham the hours worked for the most part are lower than in your district, and the fatal accidents over a number of years have been lower than in your district, where the hours worked are longer. Have you drawn any conclusion from that?

Witness—I cannot say that I have.

Answering Sir Leo, the witness said that he could not say that one in three miners was injured in mines every year.

Mr. Frank Tatlow, manager of the Midland Railway, told the Commission that economies in transport would be effected if the railway trucks belonged to the railway companies, instead of so many to private owners. Provided that the railway shareholders were properly paid, the Government could do what they liked with the railways, but he would oppose anything in the nature of confiscation.

THE IRON AND STEEL TRADES.

Mr. Benjamin Talbot, of the National Federation of Iron and Steel Manufacturers, stated that if the miners' demands were conceded it would injuriously affect the iron and steel industry.

In reply to a Labour member, he said that he would prefer the miners to strike than that they should do injury to the iron and steel trade, which he believed the miners' demands would involve. He admitted that the shares of the iron and steel concerns were higher than ever.

The inquiry was adjourned till to-day.

COAL PRICES AND IRISH INDUSTRIES.

DUBLIN CHAMBER AND COAL COMMISSION.

The present high price of coal is causing serious injury to Irish industries of every kind, and it is, therefore, necessary that all means should be taken to bring about a reduction of rates as soon as possible. The Dublin Chamber of Commerce has been invited to prepare and give evidence before the Coal Mines Commission, and in our advertising columns today it asks manufacturers, merchants, and all others who can do so to furnish information which can be laid before the Commission, so that as strong a protest as possible may be made against the present charges. Forms on which this evidence can be supplied may be had from the Honorary Secretary of the Chamber of Commerce.

FLEET-SURGEON S. KEAYS, R.N.

The Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty have awarded Fleet Surgeon S. Keays, R.N., of "Trafalgar," Knapton road, Kingstown, the good service pension, in the vacancy created by the death of Deputy Inspector-General G. B. Murray, R.N.

THE CHURCH AND INDUSTRIAL UNREST.

The Archbishops of York and Canterbury have issued a statement recommending that on Sunday, March 16th, special prayers should be offered in all churches for the righteous settlement of grave industrial problems now under consideration. Notices to that effect should, they suggest, be given in public Services tomorrow. Included in the statement are suggested forms of the ministers' call to prayer and of special prayers themselves. The former implores Divine guidance for the leading men of the country, who are endeavouring to solve the grave problems now confronting the country, and asks that the decisions which they may reach may promote the greater good of all the people.

ICE CREAM ORDER TO BE REVOKED.

The Food Controller will shortly make an Order revoking the Ice Cream Restriction Order, 1917, as from March 22nd. The use of cream in the manufacture of ice cream will still be prohibited. Manufacturers will be allotted sugar upon a scale of 100 per cent. of their 1915 purchases upon furnishing the necessary evidence at the local food office.

The Order prohibiting the serving of milk as a separate beverage, and limiting the quantity of milk that may be used for other purposes at catering establishments, will also be revoked as from March 9th.

SPECIAL EXTRA.

FIGHT TO FINISH WITH SPARTACISTS.

The Times Berlin Correspondent telegraphs on March 6th:—The main battle between the Government and the Spartacists, which it is intended to fight to a decision, has begun early this afternoon. Strikers, with Spartacists and some Republican Guards (Berlin Irregulars), stormed and captured the great new telegraph office in the Oranienburgerstrasse, and occupied the roofs, cellars, and other points of vantage in and around the city. The Government troops were advancing steadily, and the bourgeois guards or corps of officers had opened rapid rifle fire from the Unter den Linden and the Palace precincts. Artillery has not been able to come into action owing to the facts that fighting and shell fire cannot yet be concentrated on any strategical point, but the cool bearing and admirable equipment of the corps of officers, who may number 1,500 to 2,000, are a factor of great importance in the situation.

Late this afternoon there was intermittent artillery fire, judging from the sound, east of the city. Stray bullets make it difficult to approach the fighting, and a Government cordon has cleared the streets east of Friedrichstrasse. A machine gun bullet entered the French Embassy this afternoon. Its direction indicated firing in the north of the city.

FUTURE OF GERMAN ARMY.

The Daily Chronicle, discussing the proposal that Germany should reduce her Army to 200,000 men, says that it will be reasonable and necessary to leave to future German Governments a sufficient Army to uphold their domestic authority and guarantee order, but we can see no case for leaving a man more. Every soldier they are allowed to maintain for possible war-making will impose upon the Powers forming the League of Nations the necessity of maintaining extra soldiers to correspond. What sense would there be in our permitting our military burdens to be thus increased.

PEACE DEMONSTRATION.

The Morning Post remarks that it is officially announced that there will be a great review of the Fleet, but that event cannot carry the same significance as a march of the Navy and merchant service through the Metropolis upon a day appointed to, let us say, St. Paul's Cathedral, and thence to Buckingham Palace. Perhaps the Lord Mayor would proffer the sumptuous hospitality of the city, but the occasion must be seized before it is too late, and we suggest May 1st. Are fleets of the war to pass and vanish without a word of thanks—without a gesture of farewell?

ARCHBISHOP MANNIX AND IRELAND.

A Reuter's message from Melbourne, dated February 27th, states:—Replying to a message from the Irish Congress of America, Archbishop Mannix cabled—"President Wilson and America, the world yearns for peace and Ireland for freedom."

BRITISH SHIPS IN JUTLAND BATTLE.

THE DAMAGED BATTLESHIPS.

Official details were given recently of the damage to German vessels at the battle of Jutland, and returns are now nearly completed recording the damage suffered by the British vessels engaged. The Press Association has been favoured with particulars which relate to the battleships.

The Marlborough and the Colossus were the only two battleships in the main force to be hit, but other battleships were with the Fifth Battle Squadron, and some of these suffered severely. The Marlborough was hit by a torpedo under the fore-bridge, abreast of which are the dynamo room and the hydraulic room, both of which were flooded. "A" boiler room was also flooded up to the floor plates, and the fires were drawn in that boiler room. The ship was not hit by shell-fire. The Colossus was hit in the superstructure, first abaft the foremost funnel by a 12-inch shell, which exploded and caused a fire in the port gun decks and signal deck. Another 12-inch shell hit the sounding platform on the port signal deck, but apparently passed overboard without bursting. A heavy shell burst thirty yards short, abreast of "A" turret. Splinters penetrated the foremost funnel and the unarmoured parts of the ship in about twenty places, and wrecked some searchlights, burst the fire main in the captain's cabin flat, and caused unimportant damage. The range-taker on the fore upper bridge was severely wounded, and one Marine look-out in the same position was slightly wounded. A leading signaller in the foretop was severely wounded.

THE FIFTH SQUADRON.

The following details apply to the battleships serving with the Fifth Battle Squadron:—The Barham in the early part of the action was only hit twice—once below the water line, doing practically no damage; later a heavy shell entered the glacis, before number 1 6-inch gun, starboard, and abreast of the after-end of "B" turret redoubt armour. This shell burst at the main deck, over the medical store, completely wrecking the auxiliary wireless telegraph office and the medical store, and putting the starboard forward hydraulic pump out of action. The bulk of the medical stores, stretchers, etc., were destroyed, and heavy casualties occurred among the medical party and the wireless telegraph staff. There were three other heavy hits during this part of the action, but the first is described in detail, as it was much more vital than the remainder, and put the auxiliary wireless telegraph and starboard fore hydraulic pump out of action, and cut a number of fire control voice pipes and the pipes to the port steering engine telemeter.

The Malaya was hit eight times. The first and second indented the upper armour plate and indented and tore the ship's plating below the armour. The third was a heavy shell which struck the plates above the water line, pushing the plating back. The steam-pipe to the siren was fractured by a splinter, the escape of steam rendering communication with the top impossible until the steam was shut off. Hits four and five—The galley, canteen, drying room, and fittings on the gun deck were wrecked by a large shell passing through the forecastle deck and exploding in the 6-inch battery. The 6-inch gun starboard was damaged and the mounting wrecked. Hits six and seven—A large hole below the armour was apparently caused by two projectiles. The inner and outer oil bunkers and wing compartments were flooded. The seamen's bathroom on the middle deck was flooded, and there were leaks into the adjacent compartments. Hit eight was a heavy shell which struck the roof of the turret, bulging and perforating the roof slightly, without exploding. All the securing bolts were sheared and the roof started. The only damage in the turret was that the range-finder was put out of action, as was the Kilroy danger signal to the right gun.

With reference to the damage caused by number three, it is explained that the siren is always set very high, in order that the sound may carry the better. Mishaps are not infrequent, even apart from actual warfare, and the jamming of the siren makes it impossible to hear, so that the commander has frequently found it necessary to leave his position on the bridge and convey orders in person.

The Valiant was not hit at all.

The Warspite was not hit during the first part of the action. There were two hits shortly before 6 p.m., both from heavy guns. Both perforated the 6-inch armour, one on the boys' mess deck, and the other right aft, against the officers' cabins, causing considerable damage. The steering gear jammed, with the helm hard aport, causing her to turn in circles, by going astern with one engine. She was at one time closing with the enemy, after which she was allowed to go on turning, and then stopped while the damage to the helm was made good. During this time she was hit about 28 times, of which hits about 16 were by big guns, and these did more or less serious damage. The principal damage was one gun from the turret, and one 6-inch gun out of action. One shell holed amidships, and on the water line. Another very large gap, right aft, below the belting, was caused by a ricochet shell when the ship was steaming fast. The damage from other hits was mostly structural, and the casualties were very light. The record of the damage to the cruisers and destroyers is not yet ready for publication.

ST. SENAN'S BELL.

St. Senan's Bell, which was sold at Christie's on Thursday for 1,250 guineas, was purchased by Mr. George William Panter, who intends to present it to the Royal Irish Academy, to be held as a gift to the nation.

FINANCIAL CRUX IN FRANCE.

SUGGESTED INTER-ALLIED LOAN.

ECONOMIC LEAGUE OF NATIONS.

A Reuter's Paris telegram of yesterday says:

The Chamber to-day discussed interpellations on the financial situation.

M. Peret, Reporter of the Budget Commission, said that the total Budget expenditure of the war amounted to 181,000,000,000 francs, compared with 151,000,000,000 francs available up to March 31st. Taking into account the liquidation of stocks, the deficit would be about 20,000,000,000 francs. The annual Budget would jump from 5,000,000,000 to 18,000,000,000 francs. He considered that it would be difficult to issue an interim loan, and that it would be necessary to have recourse to a Financial League of Nations. This was an imperative necessity for all the Allies, because none of them could, with its own resources, face its financial difficulties. An Inter-Ally Loan would be certain of success. Its first objects would be to repair the damage done in the war, and to liquidate in common the expenditure of the war.

"If France," said M. Peret, "had not, with so much self-abnegation, devoted herself entirely to the war what would have been the result? France has the right to make her voice heard." M. Peret urged the necessity of establishing an economic Entente among the Allies.

M. Peret declared that economies should be made, and that the various abuses to which the war had given rise should disappear.

Speaking on the question of the suggested tax on capital, M. Peret stated, amid applause—"We must first aim a blow at German capital." Germany must make reparation—must pay—because, from the economic point of view, she is in a state of incontestable superiority to France. Nothing is destroyed in Germany, and German capital, according to the admissions of its financiers, is estimated at three hundred milliards, while private incomes amount to fifty-two milliards."

M. Peret then contrasted the ruined condition of the invaded regions with the wealth of Germany, and asked how, in these circumstances, it was possible to talk of France enriching herself. The speaker then went on to say that accounts must be taken of the fall in transferable securities, Russian and Rumanian securities, and, above all, in human capital, for France had lost three million men in killed and maimed who were now lost to French trade and industry.

THE KING AND AFTER-WAR PROBLEMS.

DUTY OF THE CHURCH.

The Archbishops of Canterbury and York, with a number of Bishops, waited upon the King at Buckingham Palace yesterday to present addresses from Convocation. It was the first occasion since 1911 that Convocation had addressed the Crown. The ceremony took place in the Throne Room, where the King received his visitors in the presence of Mr. Shortt, Home Secretary; the Lord-in-Waiting, and the Equerries-in-Waiting.

The Archbishop of Canterbury read the Canterbury address, to which the King replied as follows:—

"It gives me sincere pleasure to receive this loyal and dutiful address from Your Grace and the bishops and clergy of the province of Canterbury in Convocation assembled. I cannot look back upon the years which have passed since the last occasion on which I received such an address without recognising the heavy burden of private sorrow and national trouble laid upon this country as a result of the great war. I appreciate your reference to the long continued labours of my beloved father to preserve peace among the nations. Those efforts have seemed for the moment to be in vain, being swallowed up in the most tragic and devastating conflict that the world has ever seen; but I hope and trust that, under the providence of God, the deliberations of the Peace Congress may result in such an agreement as shall make it far more difficult in the future for any nation to plunge the world into the horrors of war.

"I share with you the hope that the signing of peace will be a prelude to a new era in the social life of this country.

"While we can now look back upon a succession of reforms and improvements extending over many years, there is still much to do to bring the conditions in which the majority of the people of these islands work and live into harmony with their own desires, and with the genuinely improved standards of health, education, and comfort, and the necessary opportunities for wholesome recreation. I am sure that the vivified public spirit which follows the war, a war which, both in the battlefield and at home, has drawn all classes into one, will be reflected in the activities of Parliament, of the Government departments, and of the local authorities, and I am equally confident that the ministry of the Church will always be directed towards a high conception and a faithful fulfilment of public duty.

"I look forward with interest to the result of the proposed modifications of the law relating to the conduct of Divine Service. In this, and in kindred efforts I am sure your object will always be to adapt the ministration of the Church to the needs and opportunities of the time, and to recognise its living responsibility as the Church of the people. I believe that as the era now opening seems to present problems, alike in religion and in social life, of wide range and great perplexity, your efforts, as those of all right-thinking men, will be towards such settlements as will, by the blessing of God, increase the spirit of goodwill among men, without which no problem can be solved, while with it no difficulty is insuperable."

The Archbishop of York then read the address from the Northern Province, to which His Majesty replied:—

"I thank you for your expression of loyalty and devotion to the Throne, and for the blessings which you call down on the labours incidental to it. Your congratulations on the victory which has crowned the efforts of my Army and those of our steadfast Allies are the expression of a feeling in which the whole nation can share with true humility, and, with thanks to Almighty God for the victory, we may yet feel the thrill of a justifiable pride. The nation has been true to its past, as full of a spirit of invincible valour as ever, as firm and enduring as ever in its refusal to see in any temporary eclipse the complete overshadowing of the powers of right. The tragedy of innumerable homes broken, of innumerable families bereaved, testified to the strength and endurance of our consciousness of right in the struggle. That the Queen and I have been permitted to take a part in the labours incident to this struggle has been to us a solemn joy. If what we have been able to do has been, as I hope it has, a source of help to those engaged in fighting or working, or of consolation to those bereaved, we have been richly rewarded.

"I am grateful that through this trying period we have been granted the strength to labour and the sympathy that lightens labour. I join with you in thanks to God for the many mercies vouchsafed to this country, and in your prayers and aspirations for the future. I pray that all threatening perils may pass, and that the issue of the war may be for the British Empire a people strong, patient, at peace with itself and with all men, and for the world the removal for long, if not for ever, of the impending fear of warfare and of all concerted violence."

THE INFLUENZA EPIDEMIC.

CULMINATING POINT APPARENTLY REACHED.

There was comfort, of a kind, in the reports received at headquarters in Dublin from the several dispensary medical officers yesterday, which were to the effect that the influenza seemed to have reached its culminating point. The death-rate is still very high, and the hospital staffs are kept as busy as they can well be. The Health Department strongly recommends that none of the precautions which are necessary to prevent the spread of the disease should be relaxed, and that it would be a good thing if shop-keepers and managers of restaurants were to continue, systematically, the disinfection of their premises. The Irish Automobile Club have offered the Lord Mayor to place a motor ambulance at the disposal of the Public Health Committee for the removal of patients, if necessary; and the St. John Ambulance Brigade have offered to supply stretcher-bearers when required. The medical officers of health are of opinion that the schools of the city should remain closed for some time longer. The Notification of Diseases Order, as applicable to septic-pneumonia, came into force in Dublin yesterday.

No meetings of the public boards were held this week in Galway on account of the number of local deaths from the epidemic.

ST. STEPHEN'S GREEN.

THE DEMONSTRATION PLOTS.

Now that the sowing season has started, the Commissioners of Public Works think it may be useful to plot-holders and other readers of the Irish Times to have the following lists, giving the varieties and quantities of seed bought last year for the two demonstration plots in St. Stephen's Green (which are each one-sixteenth of an acre), and the times for sowing. It was found that more seeds were bought than could be utilised in plots of this size: it would probably be safe to reduce the quantities given by one-third (except in the cases of leeks, onions, turnips, and potatoes):—Peas, 2 quarts, sown March to April; broad beans, 1 pint, do.; French beans, 1 pint, May; cauliflowers, 3 packets, March to April; cabbages, 3 packets, March to July; broccoli, 3 packets, April; borecole, 1 packet, do.; Brussels sprouts, 1 packet, March; leeks, 1 oz., do.; onions, 1 oz., do.; carrots, 2 packets, April; parsnips, 2 packets, March; turnips, 1½ ozs., March to July; beet, 1 packet, April; lettuce, 2 packets, March to July; parsley, thyme, and sage, 1 packet each, do.; potatoes, 6 stones, March to April.

DON'T WEAR CORNS.

Everyone afflicted with Corns should take advantage of a wonderful remedy discovered by Dr. Wilson. It has long been supposed that hard or soft Corns were not curable. The most stubborn and painful Corn disappears when treated with Dr. Wilson's "Moovit" Corn Pencils. Just a rub—that's all. Try it to-night. The results on one Corn will convince you. The torture of the boot will be a thing of the past. Thousands of grateful customers. Of chemists everywhere, 1s. 3d. (by post, 1s. 5d.).—(Advt.)

PARLIAMENT.

RENT RESTRICTIONS BILL.

460,000 ADDITIONAL HOUSES AFFECTED.

SECOND READING CARRIED.

In the House of Commons yesterday, the Speaker took the chair at noon.

Mr. Herbert Fisher moved the second reading of the Increase of Rent and Mortgage Interest (Restrictions) Bill. He explained that the bill provided for the extension of the Act passed in 1915 for a period of one year after the conclusion of peace, subject to its amendment in certain details. The deficiency in the housing accommodation of the working classes was manifest during the years immediately preceding the outbreak of the war, but it had been greatly aggravated since, and the result had been that owners of houses had been able to demand a high monopoly rent. It was thought necessary, therefore, to continue for some time longer the protection against exorbitant rents given in the original Act. Not only was there a great deficiency in the supply of small houses, but the building of these houses was at present so unremunerative that there was no reasonable prospect of the deficiency being made good for some time to come. But safeguards must be taken against doing more harm than good. They had to consider, not only the tenants, but the owners, the mortgagees, the general interests of the community, and, in particular, the position of building enterprise. The grievance, though sufficiently general, was by no means universal. But legislation of this kind must be limited in its application. They had to prepare the way for the removal of artificial restrictions on trade, and to do nothing to impose disabilities on the building industry. The bill did not apply to houses now in course of erection or that might be subsequently built. The owner of working-class dwellings was often a person of humble means, and it had been decided that the owner might, after the expiry of the original Act—six months after the termination of the war—raise his rent by an amount not exceeding 10 per cent. of the standard rent (the rent that was being paid on 3rd August, 1914), while the mortgagee might raise his rate of interest by ½ per cent., or not more than a maximum of 5 per cent. per annum. Some further measure of elasticity was deemed necessary in the interests of the owner, and it was, therefore, provided that the County Court might, in certain cases, authorise an increase exceeding 10 per cent., as, for instance, where the standard rent was less than that of similar houses in the locality. Conversely, it was provided that where a tenant could show that his house was being let at higher than the standard rent of similar houses in the neighbourhood, the County Court could order no increase in the standard rent, or an increase of less than 10 per cent. The bill extended the provisions of the original Act to houses of a higher rental. He was advised that the number of fresh houses brought in in this way was 460,000, as against 6½ million houses affected by the principal Act. He admitted the probability of some attempt being made to raise rents when the restrictions were removed, but it was reasonable to suppose that a year after the conclusion of the war more houses would have been built, and, owing to the departure of the German prisoners, the resumption of the normal flow of emigration, and the release of houses "commandeered" for military purposes, the demand for houses would have been reduced.

SIR T. P. WHITTAKER.

Sir T. P. Whittaker said he thought that the bill embodied a moderate proposal, which was in the nature of a compromise between various interests, but he warned the Government not to yield to pressure to extend the bill in various directions. It was owners who had not recognised the necessity of being moderate who had created the difficulty.

Mr. Rowlands said he thought that landlords should be asked to use some portion of the 10 per cent. in improving the condition of the houses. He thought that the qualification of houses coming under the bill should be raised to £75, and he hoped that the period of the bill's operation would be extended.

Mr. W. R. Smith said that the operation of the bill should be extended until there was a better supply of houses available. He suggested an extension to two years.

Mr. Lorden urged that legislation of this character hindered rather than encouraged the building of houses.

Mr. W. Graham and Mr. J. Johnstone urged that the limit for Scotland should be raised to £60 and that the time should be extended to two years.

Mr. Clement Edwards asked most earnestly to have the operation of the measure extended for a substantial period, and urged that the rental limit should be raised.

Mr. M'Guffin said that he gave his constituents in Belfast a pledge that, in the event of such a bill being introduced, it would receive his strenuous opposition. He opposed it on the ground that it would inflict further privations on people who were unduly burdened at the present moment.

Mr. Rawlinson said that there seemed to be a glorious uncertainty in the minds of the occupants of the Treasury Bench as to the details of the bill.

Mr. Clyde (Lord Advocate) emphasised the fact that this was an emergency measure, and that it was intended to deal only with the houses of wage-earners. There was a great deal to be said against any interference, except in the case of those who were least able to protect themselves, with the ordinary conditions of free contract.

Sir Frederick Banbury characterised the bill as a vote-catching measure that disregarded all sound economy.

Sir Alfred Yeo asked what was the position in regard to increases in the rates, and the position of those tenants who had received notice to leave this month or in June.

Major Lloyd Graeme welcomed the bill, but said that he thought the £55 limit too low.

Mr. Moles supported the bill.

The bill was read a second time and committed to a Committee of the whole House.

SUMMONS AND PROCESS SERVERS BILL.

The Summons and Process Servers Fees (Ireland) Bill, which authorises an increase in the fees due to process servers, was read a second time, and passed through all its stages.

RESTRICTIONS ON IMPORTS.

Sir Samuel Roberts asked the President of the Board of Trade, in view of the present high level of the cost of living, whether he could state when it was proposed to remove the existing restrictions on imports.

Mr. Bridgeman replied that the Government had decided that no import restrictions should be, or continue to be, imposed on goods coming from any part of the Empire without the consent of the Cabinet, which would not be given unless some unforeseen necessity arose. It was not possible at present to remove the restrictions on imports from foreign countries, but all raw material would be freed from import restrictions.

Major Earl Winterton asked whether, before a decision was arrived at to remove the restrictions on imports from foreign countries, the House would have an opportunity of discussing the matter.

Mr. Bridgeman—That is a question for the Leader of the House.

THE KINMEL PARK INCIDENT.

Mr. Tyson Wilson asked whether any statement could be made with regard to the incidents which had occurred at Kinmel Park.

Lord Edmund Talbot—No; I have no further information.

The House adjourned at 4.10 p.m.

FUNDS OF SUITORS IN THE SUPREME COURT.

In the House of Commons yesterday Mr. Baldwin moved a motion, which was agreed to, authorising an account of the receipts and payments of the Accountant-General of the Supreme Court of Judicature in Ireland, in respect of the funds of suitors in the said court, including therein funds to the credit of lunacy accounts in the year to the 30th day of September, 1918, together with a statement of liabilities and assets, and particulars of securities in court on the 30th day of September, 1918.

APPEAL FOR FUNDS FOR MERCER'S HOSPITAL.

Particulars of the reasons which necessitate an urgent appeal for funds on behalf of Mercer's Hospital will be found in our advertising columns. For 184 years this old Dublin hospital has ministered for the relief of the sick and afflicted from all parts of Ireland. The record of the charitable work carried out in the hospital shows the calls made at all hours of the day and night, and that none in need of help is ever refused, and is one which proves how great is the claim it has for support from the public. The expenses have increased enormously since pre-war times, and the hospital is faced with a heavy deficit, the bank overdraft amounting to £10,000. To enable the benevolent work of mercy and succour to be continued and carried out in the future, the generous help of the public is needed, and the Committee ought surely to receive a response to the appeal put forward, which will relieve them of any anxiety lest there should be any obstacle in the way of continuing the most merciful work of Mercer's Hospital.

THE IRISH UNIONIST ALLIANCE.

MEETING OF LONDON COMMITTEE.

QUESTIONS OF RECONSTRUCTION.

A meeting of the London Committee of the Irish Unionist Alliance was held on Thursday at their offices, 25 Victoria street, Westminster. Sir John Butcher, Bart., M.P., occupied the chair. The formation of the London Committee was confirmed as follows:—

Lord Farnham, the Earl of Leitrim, Viscount Doneraile, Colonel Lord Ventry, D.S.O.; Admiral Lord Beresford, G.C.B., K.C.V.O.; Lord Bellew, Lord Dunalley, H.M.L.; Colonel Sir Frederick Shaw, Bart., D.S.O.; General Sir Hugh McCalmont, K.C.B.; Sir J. G. Butcher, K.C., M.P.; Sir R. Cooper, Bart., M.P.; Major Pretyman Newman, M.P.; Mr. G. Stewart, M.P.; Mr. Laurence Lyon, M.P.; Colonel C. R. Burn, M.P.; Colonel W. G. Nicholson, M.P.; Mr. John E. Walsh, Mr. J. Mackay Wilson, D.L.; Mr. Harry Franks, J.P.; Mr. Fane Vernon, D.L.; Colonel Guinness, Sir George Brooke, Bart., D.L.; Mr. R. Sanders, D.L.

Arrangements were made for the joint working of all Irish Unionist London Committees at the London office, and a Joint Executive Business Committee was appointed. The appointment of the Irish Parliamentary Reconstruction Committee was confirmed, with the following members:—

Lord Farnham, the Earl of Leitrim, the Earl of Ancaster, Viscount Doneraile, Colonel Lord Ventry, D.S.O.; Admiral Lord Beresford, G.C.B., K.C.V.O.; Lord Bellew, Lord Dunalley, H.M.L.; Sir J. G. Butcher, K.C., M.P.; Major Pretyman Newman, M.P.; Mr. G. Stewart, M.P.; Mr. Laurence Lyon, M.P.; Colonel C. R. Burn, M.P.; Colonel W. G. Nicholson, M.P.; Mr. Harry Franks, J.P. (member of Council, Surveyors' Institution); Sir George Brooke, Bart., D.L.; Mr. R. Sanders, D.L.

It was arranged that in addition there should be added to the Committee some gentlemen who are experienced in the reconstruction problems affecting the South of Ireland now coming before Parliament.

The official report continues: "The practical disfranchisement of the Southern Provinces has created a situation which is perilous to the economic, agricultural, and industrial development of the South of Ireland, unless a strong group of members of the House of Commons can be organised who will help in obtaining for the South of Ireland all the benefits to which the country is entitled under reconstruction. Fortunately, there are a number of members of this Committee and others who accept this view, and are prepared to push forward a policy of remedial legislation for Ireland which was initiated under Unionist Chief Secretaries—Mr. Arthur Balfour, Mr. Wyndham, etc.—but for some years was cast aside in the Asquith and Birrell régime. In carrying out this policy they seek the co-operation on economic and non-political questions of Irish Nationalists in the House of Commons, just as formerly the Irish Unionists often sought the co-operation of Mr. Redmond's party in such matters as land purchase, etc., which were not party, but concerned the joint interests of all the people of Ireland. To this Committee has been referred the consideration of the Government amendments concerning the Ministry of Health Bill, which is to be applied to Ireland. A sub-committee of experts will take charge of the amendments on the Transport Bill; another sub-committee is dealing with land purchase and agricultural development and the organisation of industries. Public bodies, associations, and individuals who are interested in these matters are requested to forward their recommendations to the Secretary, Irish Parliamentary Reconstruction Committee, 25 Victoria street, Westminster, S.W."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

SOUTHERN UNIONIST POLICY.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—An important point in connection with the Home Rule question seems to have been ignored by all your correspondents, and even Mr. Barrie in his recent speech gave no indication that it had occurred to his mind. It is, of course, a fact that the Unionist and Liberal leaders have pledged themselves against the coercion of Ulster. Everyone, moreover, who knows Ireland knows also that partition is utterly impossible, and not even Mr. Lloyd George is in the least likely to risk burning his fingers over it; for, with the whole country solidly united as one man against partition, no one knows better than he does that it would be worse than useless to attempt to enforce it.

The point, however, which has to be remembered is that, when the present warlike atmosphere has evaporated, and when things have once more become normal, it is by no means impossible that a Labour Ministry may be returned to power. It is certain that such a Ministry would never attempt partition, but they might quite conceivably, in collusion with Irish Nationalists, pass a Home Rule Act for the whole of Ireland and attempt the coercion of Ulster, as they would in no way be bound by pledges given by previous Unionist or Liberal Ministers.

With this possibility in view, even though not in the immediate future, it surely behoves all Unionists to keep their powder dry, and not to be lured into the belief that the Home Rule question is no longer one of practical politics.—Yours, etc.,

O. R. COOTE.

IRISH LAND PURCHASE.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—In reply to Mr. D. R. O'Brien's letter, which asks why the Centre Party has adopted, as part of its programme, the Irish Convention's conclusion as to land purchase, this has to be said: The Centre Party aims at a settlement of the whole Irish question by agreement between all sections of Irishmen. The Committee of the Convention which drafted proposals on land purchase was as variously representative and as competent a body of Irishmen for the purpose as could have been found; it reported unanimously, and its findings were accepted by the entire Convention. The Centre Party accepts that conclusion as a piece of solid work, and would be very loath to sap it.—Yours, etc.,

STEPHEN GWYNN.

IRISH AND ENGLISH BREWERS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—There have been various allusions in the Press and elsewhere to the apparent injustice of allowing Irish brewers to brew at a maximum gravity of 1047 degrees, when English brewers are confined to one of 1032 degrees. I venture to hope that the following explanation will dissipate any suspicion of unfairness in the matter:—

Irish brewers produce mainly stout, and it is well known that to make stout it is necessary to brew it at a higher gravity than beer, which is the main product of English breweries. This is instanced by the fact that for the quarter ending March, 1916, before control was instituted, when all brewers could brew at any strength they liked, the average gravity for England was 1050.4 degrees, for Ireland 1066.4 degrees. England then of her own free will was 16 degrees lower than Ireland, and she is now complaining of being 15 degrees lower.

The different conditions of the trade in the two countries should be taken into account. The large Dublin brewers have no tied houses; theirs is a free trade, subject to competition, and excellence of product is essential to maintain that free trade. They have not to pay dividends on inflated capital, which would be necessitated if they had to acquire tied houses, and they rely on their large turnover rather than on large profits per barrel brewed. On the other hand, England relies chiefly on tied house trade, and has to make more profits per barrel brewed than Ireland does.

When it was found necessary to limit the output of breweries the Food Controller had to get as many bulk barrels of beer as possible out of a given quantity of materials, and, after full consideration, he decided to take 20 degrees off England's average, and 21 degrees off Ireland's, and that ratio he has maintained to date. If he had done otherwise, taking all the circumstances of the case into account, he would have acted most unjustly, and would have succeeded in ruining one of the few industries left in this country.—Yours, etc.,

W. G. HILL, Secretary.

"ASTRONOMICAL NOTES."

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—Please allow me to make a correction in the "Notes" which appeared in the Irish Times of the 1st inst. It was there stated that Mercury and Venus will be in conjunction on March 11th. This should read Mercury and Mars. These two planets will be within less than a degree of each other, but neither will be very near Venus, that planet being some distance to the east of the other two. The error did not originate with me, but was copied out of "Whitaker's Almanack." I ought to have known better, and I should not have omitted to verify the statement.—I am, etc.,

CAPTAIN GWYNN AND FEDERALISM.

STORMY PROCEEDINGS IN NEWRY.

The meeting held last night in Newry Town Hall, when Captain Stephen Gwynn delivered, or rather attempted to deliver, a lecture on "Federalism: how it Operates in the United States and the Dominions," under the auspices of the newly-formed Irish Centre Party, proved rather exciting. The hall was pretty well filled, but, as events proved, the great majority of the audience were Sinn Feiners, who evidently came prepared to prevent freedom of speech. Among those on the platform were Mr. T. C. MacArdle, D.L., and Rev. Father O'Hara, C.C.

As soon as Mr. H. J. McConville, J.P., Chairman of the Urban Council, who presided, came forward to open the proceedings, a Sinn Feiner asked if this was a public meeting, and being told it was, he further asked, amid cheers, Why, then, were police both in and around the hall? The Chairman said that he knew nothing of the arrangements, and appealed for a fair and patient hearing. Cries of "We want Federal rule to be established by ourselves" and "What about the Irishmen in English jails?"

ORGANISED OPPOSITION.

On Captain Gwynn's coming forward he was greeted with cheers and boohs, and, recognising the hostility he was up against, he proceeded to read his address amid persistent interruptions and disorder. One of the interrupters, a female Sinn Feiner, demanded to know "Is Ireland a nation?" Captain Gwynn replied, "We'll never have a nation till we are united, and that's what we are out to accomplish." (General disorder and cheers.) A Sinn Feiner—"Ireland is one and undivided." Captain Gwynn replied that she was anything but that. She was totally divided.

Captain Gwynn struggled about half way through his lecture, and finally sat down, amid the singing of the "Soldier's song," remarking that they would see it in the Press.

Rev. Father O'Hare, on coming foward to propose a vote of thanks to Captain Gwynn, also met a mixed reception. "Hear me first and hoot me afterwards if you like," said Father O'Hare.

The meeting, which lasted but forty-five minutes, then terminated, whereupon the Sinn Feiners took possession of the platform, and held a meeting on their own account—Mr. J. Southwell presiding. The others who spoke were D. Sheridan and J. Connellan, and at the close the Chairman asked all present to stand up in honour of Pierce McCann, who had died in Gloster Jail. The audience complied, with bowed heads.

CAPTAIN GWYNN'S ADDRESS.

In the course of his lecture Captain Gwynn said that he approached the question as a plain Nationalist who desired to see self-government for Ireland. Problems, such as that of Ulster, had been solved in other countries by Federalism. The most remarkable case was that of Switzerland. Its people were divided in race, they had no common language, and were sharply divided in religion. Yet by adopting the principle of forming a central government to deal with affairs that concerned the nation, and leaving to each canton those affairs which concerned only the canton, they had become a nation. The first and greatest of English-speaking Federations was, of course, the United States. The States which formed it parted with no power to the Central Government which they could retain. The United States fought a desperate Civil War to prevent secession, and for that reason they were not likely to favour the secession of Ulster from Ireland, or of Ireland from Great Britain.

ITS APPLICATION TO IRELAND.

Having explained the principles governing the constitution of Canada, South Africa, and Australia, Captain Gwynn concluded by some general observations as to the possibility of applying this example to Ireland. It was said that our country was too small, and that one Parliament should be enough. That view arose from the vicious habit of continually looking to England. It was true that Great Britain had only one Parliament. It was equally true that Parliament could not do a tenth part of its proper work. If Ireland was divided into three provinces—Northern, Midland, and Southern—with Belfast, Dublin, and Cork for their capitals, each of these provinces would have a population larger than nine of the eleven Canadian provinces. A million and a-half of people provides plenty of scope for an Assembly to do their business. The real difficulty of the arrangement would come over finance, in apportioning the powers of taxation. He assumed that the Irish Parliament would have full control of taxation, except for such powers as were left by agreement to the provincial assemblies; nobody could contemplate a tariff wall between Irish provinces, and consequently there would be a common system of customs and excise over the whole country; all this revenue should go to the Central Parliament, and as things stand this was the greater part of Irish taxation. He hoped that a self-governed Ireland would learn to depend mainly on direct taxation, under which the tax-payer knows what he is paying, and the whole proceeds of the tax goes to the revenue. The other large heading of taxation was income tax, which might, of course, be conceivably assigned to the provinces, or, if that were left, with customs and excise, to the central authority there might be assigned to the Provincial Government death duties, excise licenses, the entertainment tax, and other new and similar taxes. The provincial revenue in this case would need to be supplemented, as it was in Canada, by a grant from the central authority of so much per head of the population; but the whole question would need to be considered in view of the expenditure which the province would have power to undertake. In the matter of legislation clearly there would have to be left to the province, for instance, the power to "go dry," and he believed that the path of many important reforms might be smoothed if it were possible for opinion, where it was advanced, to make changes without waiting upon less progressive parts of the country.

MR. BARRIE'S SPEECH.

Mr. MacVeagh having asked the Lord Privy Seal whether his attention has been called to the statement of the Vice-President of the Department of Agriculture in Ireland, that in the event of the Government, putting Home Rule in operation, all the Unionist members of the Government will resign; whether this speech was delivered with the authority of the Government; and, if not, what steps will be taken to restrain the growing practice of members of the Government making unauthorised declarations of Government policy.

Mr. Bonar Law, in a written reply, said—As I understand it, the speech of the Vice-President, which referred to the possible imposition of Home Rule on Ulster, expressed his own views, and did not claim to be any expression of the policy of the Government.

FIGHTING IN BERLIN.

SPARTACISTS DEFEATED.

A Bale telegram, dated Thursday, states:—A Berlin message says that the Socialisation Law, which has been passed by the National Assembly at Weimar, enters into force to-day.

According to reports from Berlin, the Spartacists, investing the Prefecture of Police, have cut the telephone wires. Many encounters took place last night in the north-eastern part of the city, the Government troops being victorious in every case. The revolutionary movement is expected shortly to collapse. Looters found using arms at the time of their arrest are shot. Decisive fighting continues in Alexanderplatz. Eight persons were killed and a great number wounded in the course of last night's fighting.

GERMAN SOCIALISATION SCHEME.

The following details of the German Socialisation Scheme have been received in Berne:—A Council of forty-five experts will be jointly appointed by the Government, the mine-owners, and the miners to take the necessary provisional measures in connection with the production, distribution, and sale of coal, of which the Government will fix prices. With regard to Workmen's Councils, the Government avoids giving them political powers in the strict sense, but the Constitution will formally acknowledge the principle of the institution of Workmen's Councils, whose mode of election and powers will be fixed by law. The Council, composed entirely of workmen, will settle the general organisation of work in each factory; a mixed Council will settle questions of a more especially political nature; the Central Labour Council, created for the whole Empire, together with the District Councils, will discuss the economic laws which they will have the power of introducing. The Government also intends to introduce a National Labour Bill.

ROYAL IRISH CONSTABULARY AND THE POLICE UNION.

Mr. Macpherson, replying to a question by Captain Redmond, said that it had been decided by the Government that the Royal Irish Constabulary could not be permitted to join the National Union of Police and Prison Officers, inasmuch as the Royal Irish Constabulary was a semi-military force directly under the control of the Crown, and subject in many respects to the same conditions of employment and discipline as the Army and Navy.

SINN FEIN PRISONERS.

TWO ARRIVALS FROM ENGLAND.

Two Sinn Fein prisoners who were interned at Reading Jail—Messrs. Lawrence Ginnell, M.P., and W. P. Cosgrave, M.P.—arrived at Kingstown yesterday morning from Holyhead, having been released in accordance with the intimation given by the Chief Secretary in the House of Commons on Thursday. Their arrival was not generally expected by their sympathisers, and there was no organised demonstration in the vicinity of Carlisle Pier. Messrs. Harry Boland, M.P., and Michael Collins, M.P., met the boat with a motor car, and drove in company with the two released prisoners to Dublin. A small crowd of Sinn Feiners had assembled at Westland row Station awaiting the arrival of the boat train, including Countess Plunkett and Alderman Tom Kelly. The motor car conveying Messrs. Ginnell and Cosgrave drove by Westland row, and stopped for a time while greetings were exchanged, driving on then to Mr. Cosgrave's residence in James's street. It is understood that the officials at the Sinn Fein headquarters, 6 Harcourt street, were yesterday in ignorance of the time at which the next batch of prisoners would be liberated. A prisoner who was set at liberty some time ago suffering from ill-health, expressed the opinion that in prisons where the influenza epidemic was rife releases might be delayed through fear of spreading contagion. The death of Mr. P. J. M'Cann, M.P., was generally regretted by all the prisoners, among whom he was held in high esteem. The Sinn Fein Party have sent Mr. Nunan to Gloucester to accompany the remains to Ireland. Several other Sinn Fein prisoners, including Messrs. Loughnan, O'Keeffe, O'Carroll, and Dr. Dillon, all of whom were suffering from influenza, were removed from the prison to a nursing home at the same time as Mr. M'Cann, and are stated to be progressing towards recovery.

Some Sinn Fein prisoners were on parole in Ireland when the intention to release the entire number was made public. These include Messrs. Darrell Figgis, Sean Aurley, Robert Brennan, and T. M'Swiney, and it is stated that they have received intimation that it will not be necessary for them to return to England. A number of the prisoners have been unconditionally released owing to ill-health, including Count Plunkett, M.P.; Mrs. Thomas Clarke, Mrs. Gonne M'Bride, Messrs. Etchingham, M.P.; George Lyons, J. Ruane, S. M. Russell, and J. Brennan Whitmore. In addition to Mr. M'Cann's death, it will be remembered that Mr. Richard Coleman died from pneumonia following influenza in November last. Prisoners who effected their escape from custody include Messrs. E. de Valera, M.P.; Sean Milroy, and Sean M'Garry, who got away from Lincoln Prison a few weeks ago, and Messrs. H. Mellowes, J. M'Grath, M.P.; G. Geraghty, and F. Shouldice, who escaped from custody while being transferred from Usk to Gloucester Prison. Apart from those mentioned, there remain to be released 57 prisoners in England, of whom there are 23 in Gloucester Prison, 13 in Lincoln, eight in Birmingham, four in Reading, eight in Durham, and one in Holloway.

THE ARREST OF MR. PIERCE BEASLEY.

In the House of Commons yesterday, the Speaker announced that he had received a letter from General Sir Frederick Shaw, Commanding-in-Chief the Forces in Ireland, reporting that on March 4th Mr. Pierce Beasley, the member for East Kerry, was arrested and committed to Mountjoy Prison, to await his trial by courtmartial, for an offence against the Defence of the Realm Act Regulations.

SEQUEL TO SOLOHEADBEG SHOOTINGS.

John Ryan, aged 15, employed as a cook at the County Council sleeping van at Soloheadbeg Quarry prior to the shooting of the two policemen there, has been discharged from Tipperary Police Barracks, where he had been some days under detention. The elder of the two young brothers Connors, of Greenane, Tipperary, who were arrested some weeks ago, has also been discharged from Tipperary Police Barracks.

SINN FEINER EXPELLED FROM MUNSTER.

Thomas Carew, a prominent local member of the Sinn Fein Volunteers, son of Mr. James Carew, Golden Gardens, Tipperary, was on Friday served with a similar notice to that of Professor Fahy, ordering him within forty-eight hours to reside outside Munster and the counties of Kilkenny and King's and Queen's County.

LIMERICK PRISON DISTURBANCE.

Yesterday, at Limerick City Petty Sessions, John Breen, King's County, who did not appear, was summoned for having, on the 5th February last, while a prisoner in Limerick Jail, smashed fifteen panes of glass and a mug in his cell. He was fined 20s. and 8s. compensation. Thomas O'Toole, who also did not appear, was fined 40s., 7s. 6d. costs, and 14s. 6d. compensation for smashing ten panes of glass on the 12th February in his cell, and breaking the glass in the chief warder's office and the glass door of the hall.

TRINITY COLLEGE CLASSICAL SOCIETY.

Miss V. Whitfield read a paper on "Aeschylus" at a meeting of the Trinity College Classical Society last evening in the Regent House, under the presidency of Miss O. C. Purser, M.A. In the course of her lecture, Miss Whitfield said that round the life and works of such men as Aeschylus there raged, and would continue to rage, a controversy in which were involved the most fundamental principles of our thought. Aeschylus stood the unsurpassed head of a school of artists whose right to existence was questioned now as never before. As with every other artist, his immediate object was the fateful and impartial reproduction of life. Amongst those who spoke to the paper were Messrs. Baily, Dodds, and Mackay.

DUBLIN DRAPERY TRADE DISPUTE.

The matters in dispute in the Dublin drapery trade were further discussed yesterday at an adjourned conference between representatives of the employers and the assistants at the Mansion House, Dublin, the Lord Mayor presiding. The conference was adjourned until Tuesday.

Mr. Robert Withy Inman, father of Melbourne Inman, the billiard player, died at his residence in Richmond, Surrey, yesterday morning, aged 74. He had been ill about a fortnight.

NEVER since shoe prices rose so high have there been women's shoes so comfortable and so fine in appearance, and at the same time so low in price, as those offered here at 22/6 a pair.

It is many a day, too, since women's shoes were in such abundant supply as these particular shoes are to be found at the shops that sell Lotus and Delta.

They are so abundant that nearly every purchaser is sure of getting a pair, either straightaway or in a few days, without the need to wait for the factory for out-of-stock sizes.

These shoes are black, but the shops have also a few pairs of a shoe made of tan leather, and sold at the same price, 22/6 a pair. The black are numbered 540X, the tan 160X, and both are made on the same Delta, and have no other soles.

THE CONTROL OF FOOD SUPPLIES.

SPEECH BY MR. G. H. ROBERTS.

GERMANY'S "APPALLING FOOD SITUATION."

The Right Hon. G. H. Roberts, M.P., Food Controller, had a busy time yesterday in Newcastle-on-Tyne, where he visited the Divisional Food Office and the cold stores in the city. He addressed the members of the Committee of the Commercial Exchange, spoke at a gathering of the Rotary Club, addressed a Conference of the Food Control Committees of Northumberland and Durham, and at 8 o'clock was the guest of the Lord Mayor at dinner at the Mansion House. He returned to London by the 10.40 p.m. train.

Speaking to the quaysiders, Mr. Roberts referred to the importance of the coal exporting and shipping industries, but said that he had no authority to declare the Government's intentions with regard to those matters. One of the greatest fallacies was that restriction on output was going to bring prosperity. It was a bounden duty to disseminate knowledge throughout the country, so that the masses of the workers should no longer be ignorant of the conditions of production and distribution.

GERMANY'S FOOD SITUATION.

The food situation of the enemy was appalling. All materials had been used up, and it was not possible for the enemy to continue any longer. Within two months of their downfall the enemy believed that victory was possible. Mr. Roberts deplored the elements that were constantly at work undermining the efforts to re-organise the resources of the country and to win the war, and so exploit the opportunities to get power for themselves. It was a fatuous proposition that to reduce the hours of labour would provide employment.

THE CONTINUANCE OF CONTROL.

In his speech at the Food Committee's Conference, Mr. Roberts said that he was not going to embark upon any such hazardous venture as to say when the functions of the Food Ministry would terminate. There were certain powers which, in his opinion, ought not to terminate during the war. Consumers had been assured of the net weight and guaranteed quality. He thought it desirable that these two provisions, at least, should be maintained, and Parliament would be asked to give statutory effect to this; also the experience gained in the milk supply and in the drink supply during the war ought not to be lost entirely. Nevertheless, it would be his duty to wind up when he was certain that the interests of the public were adequately safeguarded. Every encouragement must be given to agriculturists to develop our own soil, because it was our dependence upon the foreign market which laid us open to profiteering. They were releasing margarine and tea, because the supplies and the conditions of the market secured sufficiency of these commodities. They were not releasing sugar, because it could not be bought in producing countries at the price at which it had already been acquired. If de-control was likely to put up prices, control would be maintained. The Government were anxious that the cost of living in this country should be reduced, and as soon as they could provide shipping and arrange finance they would bring in wheat from the cheaper sources of supply, with the understanding that our Allies should have their share of it, in accordance with the war arrangements.

A WARNING.

Replying to the toast of his health at the dinner, Mr. Roberts said that during the war the British Empire had shown itself the bulwark of liberty for the world. It was up to us now to see that the victory obtained by arms is not thrown away. Great Britain had proved itself greater in organisation than Germany or America, but many people did not appreciate that the war is not yet over. He regretted that we had failed to give the working classes a full appreciation of the meaning of Empire. We must see that the discipline of agencies does not destroy what Germans had failed to destroy. Our responsibilities are greater now than before the war, and on our actions in the next few years depend the destinies of the British race. He believed that the commonsense of our people would prevail, but it was the duty of all to teach others that following certain would lead to poverty, penury, and murder. He believed, however, that we were nearer to happiness and prosperity for all than ever before.

CHARGE AGAINST A CONNAUGHT RANGER.

Before a General Courtmartial in Cork yesterday Private O'Neill Murray, 4th Connaught Rangers, was charged with desertion in France in 1917, and with absenting himself until apprehended in Belfast in April, 1918. He was further charged with absenting himself while under arrest in Belfast, with losing his equipment, and fraudulent enlistment in the South Irish Horse in Dublin, and absenting himself from the latter until apprehended in Belfast a second time. The accused stated that he left France owing to family trouble, and had no intention of deserting. The findings will be promulgated.

MODERN ITALY.

"The history of what man has accomplished in this world," wrote Carlyle, "is at the bottom the history of the great men who have worked here." We believe that this is also Miss Bayley's conception of history, for she has devoted the main portion of her book to an account of the deeds and characters of the four "great men" whose labours resulted in the achievement of Italian unity. Four men more dissimilar in character could scarcely be found than were Garibaldi, Mazzini, Cavour, and King Victor Emmanuel II. Mazzini, to whom belongs the first place as being the prophet and inspirer of the cause, was the dreamer and idealist whose ideal was an Italy organised as a religious republic; Cavour, the clear-sighted, practical statesman who inherited from his Swiss grandfather those democratic ideals, combined with a natural conservatism, which have made Switzerland the most stable republic in Europe; Garibaldi, the great soldier resembling the condottiere of mediæval days on the one hand, and the famous citizen generals of the French Revolution on the other; and, finally, the King himself, whose part in the great achievement has been too long obscured by the work of his famous subordinates. The bond of union between these four was their common belief in the inherent righteousness of their cause and in the great future which awaited Italy when once she had become a nation.

Miss Bayley, in a vivid and dramatic manner, sets forth the great theme of the Risorgimento, and, what is even more important, she proves in this volume that she has the gift of making her readers see the motive forces that prompted the actions of the heroes in this, the great historic drama of the last century. The illustrations are what illustrations in a book of this kind should always be—and too frequently are not—photographs of the principal men in the story. We should like to see every text-book on history illustrated by photographs or paintings of the great men with whose life-work the book is concerned, for to see a great man's face is often the quickest way to understand what it was that made him great. We have but a single fault to find with this admirable volume of Miss Bayley's—its brevity.

"The Making of Modern Italy." By Mary Clive Bayley. London: Cassell. 7/6 net.

A GREAT CENTURY.

This large and elaborate book is, on the whole, disappointing, though it covers one of the most interesting centuries in the history of France—from the end of the Renaissance till the succession of Henry of Navarre, from 1496 to 1588. Within this range we have to consider four Kings, and at least two celebrated Queens, of France, as well as the early history of the religious persecutions, including the Massacre of St. Bartholomew. With such a wonderful theme, one hoped for a thrilling and dramatic book, but this hope is not fulfilled. Although the author has studied his documents, he has not possessed himself of his period as great writers of history must. Instead of throwing before our eyes a vivid and splendid picture, he gives us too much detail.

We enter the scene during the reign of Francis I., and our hero, the first Duke of Guise, goes with him to Italy. It is also during this reign—to cement the Italian friendship—that Francis I. marries his son, Henry, to Catherine de Medicis, niece of the Pope. She becomes the mother of three kings and mother-in-law to Mary Stuart. This plain southern woman, despised by the elegant French nobles as an "apothecary's daughter," is the evil genius of our book. She was sometimes the friend of the Guises, sometimes their bitter enemy; but at all times the persecutor of the Huguenots, and the instigator of the murders to remove those who baulked her. She was, as we have said, mother of three French Kings—Francis II., Charles, and Henri III., who was also King of Poland. One of her daughters became Queen of Spain, another Duchess of Lorraine, and another the wife of Henry of Navarre, and thus Queen of France. Over all these Catherine influenced immense powers. In fact, it is difficult to find in French history any other woman whose influence was so far-reaching. Here, too, we are disappointed in the book before us, for we cannot draw from it any mental picture of this wonderful, ugly woman.

It would make an interesting digression to try to draw a comparative sketch of her beside Mme. de Maintenon, the other persecutor of the Protestants, but we can only suggest the idea to those whom it may interest. Catherine died at sixty in 1589, knowing that she had failed, and that the Kingdom was surely passing from the hands of her children into those of the first Bourbons, for with Henry III. ended the house of Valois; with Henry IV. rose the rule of the Bourbons. Another person of whom we hear too little is Mary Stuart, a niece of the Duc de Guise, and brought, indeed, to France largely through his influence. As she is one of those unfortunate women of whom much is said, both for good and evil, we might have been allowed to hear more of her early girlhood. These omissions are the defects in a long and careful book, from which many details might better have been eliminated. We are rather puzzled and confused by too many facts, which do not really make the study of these fierce men more living. The illustrations are fine and well selected. From them we seem to learn something more intimate about these long dead men and women than Mr. Williams can tell us.

"The Brood of False Lorraine." By H. Noel Williams. London: Hutchinson. Two Vols. 20/-.

ECONOMIC STATESMANSHIP.

"Economic Statesmanship" deals with the great industrial and financial problems which arise out of the war. The cessation of hostilities makes such questions immediately vital. This book forms a companion volume to the author's well-known work, "The Great Problems of British Statesmanship." It is hopeless to attempt the discussion of economic questions unless the opinions formed and the conclusions drawn are based on carefully-prepared and accurate statistics. One of the great merits of this volume is its mass of statistical matter, which not only serves to elucidate the subjects discussed, but forms a compendium of valuable information for subsequent reference.

Among the numerous subjects dealt with by Mr. Barker one of the most important is "the inefficiency of British industrial production." There is a widely-spread belief that America owes her enormous wealth to the extent of her territory and the vast and varied resources of her fruitful soil. That such a belief is erroneous may be learned from the fact that the value of production of her manufacturing industries is 2½ times that of agriculture. A broad comparison of relative production between the United States and the United Kingdom may be made. The number of workers engaged in private manufacturing industries in the States is about 6½ millions, and the value of their production is over £4,134,000,000. In the United Kingdom, in industries of all kinds, public and private, some six million persons are employed, and the total value of production is only £1,617,000,000.

The reasons for this discrepancy are not far to seek. The Americans use the newest labour-saving machinery, and depend more on power than on manual labour for production. Also, there is no determined effort by trade unions to limit production. Mr. Samuel Gompers, speaking in June, 1917, has stated the American labour view very clearly: "There has not been any restriction of output for thirty years in America. We say to the employers, 'Bring in all the improved machinery and new tools you can find. We will help you to improve them still further, and will get the utmost product out of them; but what we insist on is the limitation of the hours of labour for the individual to eight per day.'" We think that the pronouncements of trade union leaders in the United Kingdom have been couched in a very different strain.

Increased production means increased pay, and we are not surprised to learn that average rates of pay in America are at least three times beyond the British scale. "Peace and ease beget sloth. Hard times beget energy and intelligent exertion." Increased taxation should act as a powerful spur to production, and should lead to a rapid increase of the national income and the national wealth. Mr. Barker gives comparative tables of the net output of the individual worker in a number of specified trades in the United States and the United Kingdom, and in all cases that of the American artisan is nearly treble that of his British brother.

The chapters on Germany and the indemnity question are illuminating, especially as to the estimates of the material and potential wealth of the country. This section, together with that on "Coal, Iron, and World Domination," forms quite the most valuable part of a really valuable book.

THE BLOODLESS WAR.

Mr. E. M. Gray writes an able exposure of the bloodless war which the Germans waged in Italy. His thesis is that Germany meant to overcome Europe peacefully. She meant to obtain control of the money-lending banks, and by their means to control capital. In gaining control of capital she was also gaining control of the industries which depended on the use of this capital. These industries were, as a rule, key industries—that is, they were those which were required in endless ways in other industries. In 1841 Lizst foresaw the policy of peaceful penetration, and its working out is in accordance with the ideas of this German economist. Mr. Gray analyses peaceful penetration as it was applied to Italy, and lets us see the general case. In this policy the control of crude ores was most necessary if the trade of the last three decades was to attain the position which, in fact, it reached. For the last thirty years German metallurgy gained on all sides from the political power of the Empire, and, as the course of the war proved, contributed extensively to the preservation of such gains. The plant and equipment of the Hütte attached to the High School, Breslau, for testing ores and investigating conditions dealing with concentrates had no equal in the world.

This school did not stand alone. It was vital to exercise a monopoly on the copra market, certain chemical dyes, certain kinds of explosives, the spelter of Australia, the nickel of New Caledonia, the iron ore of Russia, tüngsten, the wolfram ore of Buram, and the monazite sands of the Transvaal. Nickel is a metal of the first importance for the production of guns and armour-plate, and in heavy forging generally. Tüngsten is a powder extracted from wolfram ore, which is indispensable for the hardening of armour-plate. Monazite sands contain thorium, uranium, zirconia, and lanthanum, a metal used, inter alia, for electrical purposes. The truth is, as Mr. Gray urges, that in a short time we all should have been in economic bondage to the Germans—if they had been content to possess their souls in patience. There is, however, a grim Nemesis about such deeply-laid plans: they require money for the upkeep of the Army and Navy, and the amount required tends to increase. Finally, taxation becomes intolerable. This is in essence what happened in Germany. The people were beginning to feel that the strain was almost insupportable, and the authorities were becoming sensitive in this respect. The Army was the best in Europe—so the experts assured the Government—and the Navy was also reported to be in excellent condition. The risks seemed to be few in view of the unpreparedness of the enemy, especially England. Considerations of this nature forced the hand of the merchant and gave the military class the opportunity of determining on swift decision. The war was the outcome. The author shows very skilfully the steps which Italy is taking in order to become victorious economically after the war.

CONIFEROUS TREES.

The various species of coniferæ are, of all trees, the most useful and valuable to mankind. From the cradle to the grave we are availing daily ourselves in one way or another of their products. To name all these would make a long list. Tar, pitch, petroleum, turpentine, resin, balsams, spirits, paper pulp, etc., would be included. Even some of our most toothsome confections have a foundation of pine kernels.

Before the war our imports of coniferous timber reached the huge value of thirty million pounds annually. The necessities of the war have cut largely into our home supplies, and, if we are to exercise due consideration for posterity, planting on a large scale becomes a vital necessity. At such a time the manual on "Coniferous Trees" which Mr. A. D. Webster, a well-known authority, has placed before us, is of the utmost value. It furnishes us with a full catalogue of the various conifers, with sections dealing lucidly with their propagation and characteristics, as well as the sites and soils most suitable for every kind. Particular attention is given to the varieties suitable for economic planting. It is, indeed, a book that no one interested in the subject of reafforestation can afford to ignore.

THE GENIUS OF BRITAIN.

Distance, though it may lend enchantment to the view, is often likely to assist in creating false impressions. That both Britons and Americans possessed curious and incorrect impressions of one another before the war is fairly well known. A closer association has done much to clear away these cobwebs of illusion, but further illumination is necessary for the great bulk of both nations who do not come into immediate contact. Few could undertake such a task better than Mr. Wile, an American journalist, who both before and during the war has lived and worked in England. His little book contains explanatory and warmly appreciative chapters on the British Army and Navy and the general government of the country. He shows that, although the latter may be monarchical in name, in effect it is as truly democratic and representative as that of the United States. A capital section is devoted to the doings of the Army during the war, and a selection of the deeds that have won the highest military honour is included.

THE EAGLE, STAR, AND BRITISH DOMINIONS INSURANCE CO., LTD.

During the war the Eagle, Star, and British Dominions Insurance Co., Ltd., created a record and reaped considerable advantage by its scheme of insurance in relation to the taking up of Government War Loans for its clients. It has also been active in amalgamating with other likely concerns, and has made bids to popularise its methods of management through well-balanced advertising schemes that have caught the public eye and brought substantial grist to the totals of business done in recent years in this country. Among the more recent activities of the management was the amalgamation or absorption of "the English and Sottish Law Life Office," thus confirming the previous strong financial standing of the concern, as the combined assets now reach practically £17,000,000. The latest move of the enlarged concern is the issuing of a 300-page book, called "The British Dominions Year Book, 1919," edited by Messrs. Edward Salmon, F.R.G.I., and James Worsfold, F.C.I.S., with an extraordinary amount of interesting reading, portraits, maps, types of aircraft, etc., besides articles by leading personages dealing with such momentous questions as "Comradeship in Industry," by Lord Leverhulme; "The Fourth Year of War," by various writers; "America's Efforts," "The Food Problem," by the Right Hon. J. R. Clynes, M.P.; "The Work of the Ministry of Food," by M. H. Temple, B.A., Oxon.; "The Russian Revolution," "The Truth About Japan," by Edwin Oliver; "India," by Sir M. M. Bhownaggree, K.C.I.E.; "Paying the War Bill," by Richard Keegan; "Excess Profits Duty," "State Purchase and Control of Liquor Interests," and a host of other equally important subjects. This compendium of facts and figures is in reality of standard status, and will be valued, and, moreover, read and studied, by all who may be fortunate enough to secure a copy. Messrs. David Drimmie and Sons, who so long represented the English and Scottish Law Life Office in this country, have been appointed managers for Ireland of the Eagle, Star, and British Dominions Company.

SEQUEL TO ILLEGAL DETENTION OF VOTERS.

The Local Government Board has directed that a new election for the position of attendant in Ennis Union Workhouse be held, in consequence of the incidents connected with the late election, at which Mr. M. Flynn, a former member of the Board, was appointed. On the occasion referred to some members of the Board were coming to Ennis when they were held up on the road by masked and armed men, and detained until the election was over. Mr. F. F. Cullinan, C.S., Ennis, on behalf of the defeated candidate, placed the facts before the Local Government Board, who issued the present order.

LAW REPORTS.

Family Litigation.—In the Chancery Division, before the Master of the Rolls, the case of Patrick Smith v. Owen Smith was listed on a motion by the plaintiff for judgment in default of defence. Counsel said the defendant was father of the plaintiff, and they both lived at Woodtown, near Drumree, Co. Meath. Litigation had been going on between the parties for the last three or four years in reference to the farm of Woodtown, which contains 59a. 1r. 13p., statute. The lands had been held by Mrs. Smith, now deceased, who was mother of the plaintiff and wife of the defendant, under a lease for unexpired lives, with power of appointment. She had made a deed of appointment in favour of the plaintiff, but after her death the defendant remained in possession, and he had procured a lease of the lands from the landlord. Plaintiff instituted the action to have it declared that the defendant was a trustee for him of the lands, to have a receiver appointed, and for accounts and inquiries. Mr. Potterton had been appointed receiver, and was now in possession of the lands. No defence to the action had been filed. The Master of the Rolls made an order directing the receiver to hand over clear possession of the lands to the plaintiff. He allowed the receiver his costs, together with £15 remuneration, and direcetd the defendant to pay the plaintiff his costs of the action. An account of the rents and profits was also directed. Mr. Carrigan, K.C., and Mr. Murnaghan (instructed by Messrs. John Clark and Co.) appeared for the plaintiff; Messrs. Falls and Co. for the defendant; and Mr. Walker for the receiver.

Absent Counsel.—In an action that was listed for hearing before the Master of the Rolls, two solicitors for different interested parties informed the Court that their counsel were absent on circuit. His lordship commented on the absence of counsel, and advised solicitors when they had briefs in cases to be heard during the Assizes not to give them to circuit counsel.

Sale of Tipperary Lands.—An interesting legal question arising out of the sale of the estate of R. H. Collis and others, situate in the County Tipperary, was argued before Mr. Justice Wylie in the Land Commission Court. Part of the estate, consisting of the lands of Carrick, was held under a lease for lives renewable for ever of 3rd August, 1788, from the Earl of Norbury to Maunsell Andrews, the predecessor in title of the vendors, subject to a rent of £52 15/6½. All the lives in the last renewal were long since dead, and the amount now due for renewal fines was £1,148. Negotiations had been entered into with a view to fixing the redemption price of the head rent, but it had ultimately been agreed that the price should be fixed by the Court and the sale carried out by the vendors. The price of the rent had been fixed by the Court at £920 on the basis of a fee-farm rent. The purchase money of the townland was £1,663, and was insufficient to discharge the redemption price of the head rent and the renewal fines. The bonus, which amounted to £197, was claimed by Mr. Otway Toler, the owner of the rent, on the ground that he was the proper vendor, as the vendors who had sold were at most tenants from year to year, with a right to a perpetual estate only on payment of all the renewal fines. Mr. Justice Wylie held that Mr. Toler was estopped from asserting his present claim by admissions made during the negotiations. Apart from estoppel, however, he would be disposed to hold that the vendors who had sold had power to sell under the Land Purchase Acts. He accordingly directed that the bonus be paid to them, to be held subject to the trusts, if any, affecting the purchase money. Mr. J. E. Walsh (instructed by Messrs. Montgomery and Chaytor) appeared for Mr. Otway Toler; and Mr. Oliver Murphy (instructed by Messrs. Moore, Keily, and Lloyd) for the vendors.

Action Against Belfast Merchants.—In the King's Bench, before Mr. Justice Powell, in the case of Alex. Frew v. Hugh Marshall and Co., Ltd., Mr. Ellison (instructed by Mr. Thomas Maguire), on behalf of the defendants, who are wholesale chemists and druggists and general merchants at York road, Belfast, applied for an order for discovery of documents. The plaintiff is a licensed hotel proprietor at the Victoria Hotel, Carlisle road, Londonderry, and he brings the action to recover £85 8/10 for alleged breach of contract in connection with the sale of three quarter casks of wine by the defendants to him. The statement of claim set out that about the end of August, 1918, the plaintiff, by verbal contract, agreed to purchase from the defendants one quarter cask of port wine out of bond, and free of duty, for £37 5/-. About the beginning of September a similar agreement was made to purchase two quarter casks of port wine for £76. The defendants, it was alleged, warranted the wine to be port wine of good quality, but plaintiff alleged that the article supplied was a cheap British manufactured mineral wine of very poor quality, and was worthless to the plaintiff, or worth less than the sums he paid for it. The defendants traversed the alleged causes of action, denying all the allegations made by the plaintiff. They also denied that the agent who sold the wine to the plaintiff was their agent for the purpose of making the contracts, and they said they were not aware that he was making them. Counsel moved on the affidavit of Mr. Francis J. Marshall, director of the defendant company, who stated that the plaintiff had in his possession or under his control books containing entries relating to the subject matter of the action and other documents, including correspondence, especially correspondence between Mr. Thomas Bennett, the Hotel, Ballywalter, Co. Down, and the plaintiff, and between the plaintiff and Mr. T. A. Bond, auctioneer, Londonderry, and other persons acting as agents for the plaintiff. Mr. Justice Powell made the order sought for.

THE GROWTH OF BOLSHEVISM.

MR. SYDNEY ARNOLD'S LECTURE.

At the meeting of the Dublin Literary Society in the D.B.C., St. Stephen's Green, last evening—Mr. J. K. Bridgman presiding—an address on "Russian Literature and Economics" was given by Mr. Sydney Arnold, editor of New Russia. Mr. Arnold, who is a Russian, said that the people of these countries were very ignorant of the state of things in Russia, even before the war broke out. Throughout Russian literature there was a Bolshevist trend from its earliest development. In the beginning of the eighteenth century Western civilisation began to permeate Russia, and had a quickening effect upon the people. Universities were established, theatres were built, and Peter the Great was ambitious for the spread of European culture. Bolshevism was not the growth of recent years; its traces were to be found in the literature which was created by the most eminent Russian literateurs. In 1825 some revolutionary bodies in Russia came under the influence of Western thought, and having combined their forces they formed the nucleus of the great revolutionary movement that was going on to-day in Russia. That Bolshevist movement was, he said, something similar to the Sinn Fein idea in Ireland—a thing that developed purely on national grounds. He thought that the Irish were more likely to understand the spirit of the thing than most other nations. The lecturer spoke of the works of leading Russian writers, and particularly of those of Tolstoi, who, he said, exposed the failure of the social system, and demonstrated how that failure was due to injustice, crime, vice, and dissipation.

TECHNICAL CLASSES FOR JUVENILES.

A deputation from the Dublin Advisory Committee for Juvenile Employment and the After-Care Sub-Committee, consisting of the following persons, waited on Mr. Gordon Campbell, secretary of the Ministry of Labour for Ireland, yesterday:—Rev. Dr. Denham Osborne, Rev. Father McVicar, Miss Story, Mr. Richard Booth, Mr. H. McCarthy. Miss Haire Forster and Miss E. A. Rowan accompanied the deputation.

Major Fuge, Divisional Officer, Ministry of Labour, introduced the deputation. Dr. Denham Osborne, as Chairman of the After-Care Committee, explained their mission. Other speakers were Mr. Richard Booth and the Rev. Father McVicar.

The object of the deputation was to urge the necessity of continuing the technical classes which had been started for juvenile applicants for out-of-work donations. Inasmuch as after the 5th March the majority of the children attending these classes would no longer be eligible for out-of-work donation, the deputation contended that some grant would be necessary to induce the children to remain at these classes. It was also stated the teachers were satisfied that much useful work had been accomplished and latent talent discovered.

Mr. Campbell, after hearing the deputation, assured them that the facts which they had submitted were under consideration, and that a reply might be hoped for in the course of next week.

DUBLIN HOUSING ACCOMMODATION.

In the Southern Police Court yesterday, before Mr Swifte, cases were heard in which four tenants—Mrs. Walsh, Mrs. Farrell, Mrs. Henderson, and Mrs. Smith—of the house, 6 South Cumberland street, were summoned at the suit of the Corporation to show cause why they had not quitted the premises, which, it appeared, had been closed as unfit for human habitation, and why a penalty should not be imposed.

Mr. T. F. Burke, Assistant Law Agent, appeared for the Corporation.

Mr. James Brady, who represented the tenants, said they had offered to pay the cost of the repairs.

A Corporation Inspector said the house was in a dangerous condition, and the defendants stated they had gone to addresses given them, but could find no other accommodation.

Mr. Burke said that landlords were unwilling to take tenants who would not pay their rent.

Mr. Brady said it was a desperate state of affairs that there was no accommodation anywhere. In 1914 the Local Government Board reported that there was a shortage of tenement accommodation to the extent of 27,000, and since then the Corporation had closed 1,000 more houses and evicted over 4,000 people. He charged the Corporation with gross dereliction of duty.

Mr. Swifte—Have the courage of your convictions and apply for a mandamus.

Mr. Brady—Adjourn the cases for 14 days and I will have the courage of my convictions and apply to the King's Bench for a mandamus.

Mr. Burke—We are only trying to do our duty. An order was made by your worship in January, and we are endeavouring to have it carried out.

Mr. W. J. Larkin, President Town Tenants' Association, stated that they went to practically every street in Dublin seeking rooms for the tenants of this house, but could not get them. They had offered to pay for the repairs.

Mr. Swifte said he would pro forma impose fines of 10/- each for disobedience of the order, but would put on a stay for 14 days so that Mr. Brady, who had accepted his challenge, might have an opportunity of applying for an order of mandamus against the Corporation.

Lieutenant-Commander Guy Fowles Parsons, H.M.S. Nigella, died yesterday at Portsmouth from injuries received through falling into the dock in the darkness.

DUBLIN AND DISTRICT.

Mail Van Driver Injured.—George Brown, Upper Rutland street, a mail van driver in the employment of the Post Office, was admitted to Jervis street Hospital yesterday, suffering from a fracture of the shoulder and a scalp wound. The injuries were caused by a fall from a van on which he was seated in Marlborough street.

Charge of Manslaughter.—In the Southern Police Court yesterday, before Mr. Swifte, K.C., Patrick M'Grane, driver of a milk cart, was charged on remand with the manslaughter of William Leahy (51), 29 Charlemont street, a painter, employed in the Dublin Union, by knocking him down in James' street. Mr. J. W. Davis appeared for the police. Mr. J. H. M'Loughlin, who defended, submitted that the accident had nothing to do with the man's death. Dr. Cremin stated that the deceased contracted pneumonia before his death. Accused was returned for trial.

Milk Prosecutions.—Yesterday, before Mr. Drury, K.C., in the Northern Police Court, a case was heard in which Mrs. Mary Kavanagh, 144 James' street, was summoned at the instance of the Corporation for selling two samples of new milk, one of which showed adulteration by the addition of 23 per cent. of its weight of water and the other 7.5 per cent. Evidence was given that the milk was purchased from the husband of the defendant by Food Inspector Tutty. In defence it was stated that the defendant was ill at the time. Mr. Drury imposed a fine of £20 in respect of the first summons, and made no rule with regard to the other. Mr. T. F. Burke, Assistant Law Agent, prosecuted on behalf of the Corporation, and Mr. C. Friery defended. Mr. Drury made no rule on a summons against Mary Nolan, 6 Mountbrown, for selling new milk adulterated with 18 per cent. of water. The defence was that the milk was purchased from Mrs. Kavanagh, the defendant in the last case. Mr. Burke prosecuted, and Mr. E. H. Burne appeared for the defence.

Dublin Bay Trawlers Fined.—In the Northern Police Court yesterday, before Mr. Drury, K.C., three Ringsend trawlermen named Michael Talbot, John Purcell, and William Tilly were prosecuted for trawling inside the prescribed area in Dublin Bay on the night of 15th December last. Mr. O'Flaherty, who prosecuted for the marine authority, said that trawling was prohibited inside a line drawn from the Baily Light to the Mugglins, the object being to preserve the young and small fish. Three boats, with the trawls down, were caught by the naval patrol boat close to Kingstown Pier. Mr. Friery, solicitor for the defendants, said they admitted the offence, but their case was a very hard one. They had been out the best part of a tempestuous week, so bad that one of the crew named Purcell was drowned. They had caught nothing. They undertook not to offend again. Their life was a hard one, and their boats had been got from the Department on mortgage. Mr. Drury said fishermen were making plenty of money at present. The penalty was £20 each and the confiscation of the gear, but under the circumstances he would only fine them £10 each.

CHARGE AGAINST A LIEUTENANT.

A General Courtmartial, presided over by Colonel Woolridge Gordon, C.M.G., assembled at Victoria Barracks, Cork, yesterday, for the trial of officers charged with various offences.

Second Lieutenant G. H. Turner, King's Liverpool Regiment (Service Battalion), was charged with desertion and embezzlement.

Prior to the Court being sworn, accused was asked if he objected to the President or any of the officers of the Court, and he replied that he objected to Major Soden and Captain Synge, two of the members of the Court.

Lieutenant Jones, for the accused, said the objection to Major Soden was on the ground of personal enmity to the accused, in consequence of a row which occurred between them quite recently. Major Soden was Mess President of the King's Liverpool Regiment, and at his instance food was refused to the accused. At an interview between them feeling had run high.

Major Soden said that on the strength of Mr. Jones's statement he would prefer to withdraw.

Captain Synge said he had no knowledge of the previous proceedings. He would also prefer to withdraw.

These officers withdrew, and the hearing of the case was adjourned to this morning.

FINANCIAL NEWS

DUBLIN STOCK EXCHANGE.

The general volume of business was poor on 'Change again yesterday, and, while a fair amount of firmness is maintained in certain directions, there is no doubt that the bulk of investors are playing a waiting game, pending the settlement of the important and far-reaching questions awaiting solution at the Peace Conference as in the industrial sphere. The wonder rather is how quietly confident holders continue with plenty of causes for refusing caution all around them. The Funds show some erratic price movements. Banks held firm. Breweries and Distilleries were perhaps sellers for choice, b[illegible] with practically nothing doing. City Steam [illegible] very scarce. Marconi Ord. were steady, [illegible] the Pref. established a decline. The depression in Midland Great Western Railway Stock was a striking figure. Trams were steady, b[illegible] Dunlops slackened a little. Cottons among Textiles rallied a little, but Coats were weaker. Magadi Sodas were wanted. The J. C. Parkes and Sons' dividend statement includes £1,000 for the reserve fund, as usual.

Banks were firm, but featureless. Nationals repeated 19¾, Royals 15, and Munster and Leinsters 8⅝ bid.

Breweries were neglected, but a few Dublin Distillers Pref. marked 6, or ⅛ under last quotation.

City of Dublin Steam Stock was again called 100 ineffectually bid.

In Marconis, the Ord. repeated 91s., but the Pref. fell 1s. 6d. to 75s. 6d. Americans marked 28s. 6d.

Among Home Rails, Midland Great Western Ord. closed a further 1½ lower at 30 to 31 nominally. Great Northern hardened ¼ to 88, and the Debenture Stock ¼ to 80¾. Dublin and South-Eastern at 14 shows no change, but the Pref. fell ½ to 53. Great Southern and Western Pref. was also ½ lower at 76, and the other issues show no alteration.

Tramways were quiet, but Provincial Ord. rose 3d. to 19s. 9d., and the Debs. were again called 8¾ to 9, and Cork Electric Debs. 62.

As regards Dunlops, Parent Tyre Ord. rose 1½d. to 24s., but the Deferred fell 3d. to 64s. 9d., and Dunlop Rubber Ord. closed 1s. 3d. lower at 105s. 6d. to 107s. unofficially.

In Gas, Alliance and Dublin Consumers rose ¹⁄₁₆ to 5¹⁄₁₆, and in Bakery Shares Johnstons improved ⅛ to 6⅞.

Drapery Shares were featureless.

With reference to Manufacturing Shares, Cotton Ord. rose 9d. to 74s. 3d., Helys Pref. 3d. to 20s. 3d. and Lever Bros. "A" Pref. 1½d. to 21s., but Brunner Mond fell 6d. to 43s. 6d. Coats ¹⁄₁₆ to 7½, and Vickers 1s. 1½d. to 41s. 6d.

In Trading, etc., Shares, Maguire and Gatchell Pref. realised 67s. 6d., while Irish Times Pref. repeated 82s. 6d.

LONDON MONEY MARKET.

Bank Rate (changed April 5th, 1917) .... 5 p.c.

There was not much demand for loans in Lombard street yesterday, and the market worked smoothly and easily. Call money closed at 2½ to 2¾ per cent., after being 3 per cent.; and weekly loans, at 3 to 3½ per cent., were easy. Over a quarter of a million was disbursed in dividends, chiefly upon Industrial securities. Owing to the wider margin on which the market was working, discount business became rather brisker. There was a fairly keen demand for March Treasury bills at 3⁷⁄₁₆ per cent., and for April and May bills at 3⅝ per cent. Ordinary bank drafts were not in much request, and they were quoted at the previous figure of 3½ per cent.

Spot silver was unchanged at 47½d. per oz.

The following foreign exchange rates were current:—New York cables, 4.76⅝ to 4.76½; Amsterdam, 11.56½ to 11.57½; Italy, 30.25 to 30.37½; Madrid, 22.68 to 22.73; Christiania, 17.50 to 17.51; Stockholm, 16.88 to 16.93; Berne, 22.85 to 22.93; Rio 90 days' bills, 13½d.

LONDON STOCKS HEAVY.

There was no increase of vigour on the Stock Exchange. The usual week-end influences were still operative, and the effect of these was emphasised by continued Budget fears. Prices showed a sagging tendency in many directions from neglect, for there was no heavy selling to digest, and there was very few cheerful features to relieve the monotony. Reports of a hitch in the peace negotiations had little effect. Gilt-edged issues were quiet. The War Loans were generally about the same. Consols, at 58⅛, gained ⅛.

FOREIGN BONDS STEADY.—In the Foreign market there was only a limited volume of dealings. French Loans held their slight overnight improvement, and the 4 p.c. Loan, at 67⅞, was slightly better on balance. Japanese issues met light realising, but showed marked underlying firmness, and closed unchanged. Chinese issues were not quite so firm. Russians were weak, without recovery. Among South Americans, Mexican Loans were marked back here and there, less confidence being felt in the immediate financial outlook in Mexico. Peruvians see-sawed, but closed unchanged. Brazilians were dull.

Changes.—Rises—Egyptian Unified, ¼ to 92; German Threes, 2 to 39. Fall—Italian Rentes, 1 to 67½.

RAILS DECLINE.—Among Home Rails light realising out-balanced fresh support, and on balance there was a fair number of moderate fractional falls. Many Trunk and Trade Stocks closed ¼ to ½ down. As regards Passenger Stocks, South-Eastern Deferred fell ½ to 34½, but Chathams and Brighton Def., after being lower, closed unchanged. Scotch Stocks were dull.

Canadian Pacifics held around 175. There were several further falls among Grand Trunk Stocks. The Senior Prefs. were specially flat. Mexican Rails ruled limp, and the Ord., at 23½, lost ½. Among Argentine Rails there were a few further falls of ¼ to ½, but Brazilian Rails, though quiet, held steady.

Changes.—Rises—Caledonian Def., ¼ to 11½; Denver Pref., 1 to 16; Erie, ½ to 20½; Southern Common, 1 to 32. Falls—Great Central Def., ¼ to 8¾; Great Western, ¼ to 87¾; London and North-Western, ¼ to 92¾; Metropolitan, ½ to 28; do. District, 1 to 24½; North-Eastern Consols, ¼ to 95; South-Eastern Def., ½ to 34½; Grand Trunk Guar., ½ to 49½; do. 1st Pref., 3 to 55; do. 2nd Pref., 2 to 44; do. 3rd Pref., ½ to 21¾; Armavir Touapse Bonds, 1 to 41; B.A. Great Southern, ½ to 67; B.A. and Western, ½ to 68½; Mexican Rails, ½ to 23½.

INDUSTRIALS IRREGULAR.—Among Miscellaneous and Industrial securities conditions were quiet and rather irregular, with a downward tendency predominating. The Marconi group ruled firmer. The Ord. was nearly 4¾ at the close, while the American and Marine Shares rose 1/- to 29/6 and 73/6 respectively. The Canadian Shares, at 12/6, were 6d. better. There were several falls of 6d. to ⅛ among the Iron and Steel Shares. Cammell Lairds fell ⅛ to 6½, while Pease and Partners, at 16¾, were ¼ down. Hudson's Bays, in the Land group, scored a fresh rally of ¹⁄₁₆ to 8½. Brazilian Tractions rallied a point, but in the Brewery section Allsopp Ord. and Pref. reacted a point. Bank Shares marked some slight mixed changes. Textiles were fairly firm. Among Meat Shares, Eastmans eased 3d. to 19/-, but Nelson Brothers marked a fresh jump to 43/9 on bonus talk. Van den Berghs advanced to 3⅛.

Changes.—Rises—Agricultural Bank of Egypt, ⅛ to 6⅞; Bank of Australasia, 1½ to 134; Marconi Marine, 1/- to 73/6; do. Canada, 6d. to 12/-; do. America, 1/- to 29/6; Hudson's Bay, ¹⁄₁₆ to 8½; Brazil Tractions, 1 to 54. Falls—Anglo-Egyptian Bank, ½ to 16; Hong Kong and Shanghai Bank, 2 to 101; London Co. and Westminster, ¼ to 17¼; Armstrong, 6d. to 38/-; Assd. Cement, ¹⁄₁₆ to 6⅞; Brunner Mond, ¹⁄₁₆ to 2¼; Cammell Laird, ⅛ to 6½; Eastmans, 3d. to 19/-; John Brown (15/- paid), 6d. to 25/6; Lipton Pref., 9d. to 16/6; Pease and Partners, ¼ to 16¾; Vickers, 1/- to 40/6; Allsopp Pref. Ord., 1 to 45½; do. Pref., 1 to 58½; Bass Pref., ½ to 84.

MINING MARKET LACKS SUPPORT.—There was only a limited volume of dealings among Mines, and prices moved with narrow irregularity. Kaffirs were slow and colourless, and slight mixed changes were merely due to small week-end adjustments. Diamonds were spottily weaker on realisations, and West Africans showed hesitancy. Among Russians a distinctly better tendency prevailed, and prices scored a moderate advance under the lead of Irtysh, which was stimulated by the good cable from the property. Copper metal rose 5/-, and tin £6 10/- per ton.

RUBBER MARKET DULL.—Price of rubber was unchanged at 2/0½ per lb. The amount of business done in the share market shrank very much, and earlier in the day there was a tendency for prices to decline all round. Towards the close of business a rather harder feeling was manifested, and nett losses on the day did not amount to much. Anglo-Dutch were lower at 38/6, as were Linggi at 27/6, but Rubber Trust were steady at 30/9. Java Investment declined further to 36/-, and Java Amalgamated to 36/9, but there was activity in Kasintoe between 37/3 and 38/1½, and in Lanadron around 40/-. Sungei Choh changed hands at 83/1½, and Wampol at 30/-. United Sua Betong rose to 79/-. In the Floriner section there were brisk dealings in Chersonese between 3/8 and 3/10½, and in Merlimau between extremes of 6/8 and 7/-. Merbau were a little higher at 3/11, and Semenyih were done at 5/9. In the Borneo division there was little fresh to report. The day's bargains include Hayoep, 22/3; Lok Kawi, 25/6 and 25/9; Manchester N.B., 33/10½; Sablas, 24/6, and Tenom, 46/9.

BOARD OF TRADE RETURNS.

INCREASES IN IMPORTS AND EXPORTS.

The Board of Trade returns dealing with our foreign trade for February showed an increase of 8 millions to 107 millions in imports as compared with the corresponding month last year. Exports, at nearly 47 millions, were over 7½ millions up. On the import side the food, drink, and tobacco category records an increase of just on 9 millions, though the grain and flour item represents 3½ millions less. Among raw material imports there were some pronounced movements. Raw cotton imports fell nearly 4½ millions, but wool increased by nearly 2½ millions, and oils, etc., by 1½ millions. Manufactured imports showed a decline of rather over a quarter of a million. As regards exports, most of the total increase was contributed by manufactures, which were worth nearly 7 millions more. The value of cotton manufactures was 2½ millions more and wool manufactures 2¼ millions more. A gain of over 1¼ millions was shown in the value of coal and coke exports.

The imports into the United Kingdom during February and the two months of the year were:—

MARKET REPORTS.

GRAIN.—DUBLIN CORN EXCHANGE, Friday.—Very few attended to-day's Corn Exchange and the idle atmosphere permeating things could give little impression of values. However, it is evident a very nervy and unsettled feeling has become manifest, particularly for oats, following Government announcement of 6/- per 320lb. in Irish oats, ex store, on 17th inst, and a drop of 5/- per barrel in Scotch rates. Whatever the reason be, too, many originally intended seed parcels of grain, whether surplus stock or otherwise, are being pressed forward for realisation in outside circles. Wheat or barley presents no particularly new feature.

FLOATING GRAIN CARGOES (BALTIC), Friday.—WHEAT—Moderate offers were taken up at official prices. All grades of imported wheat quoted 80/- per 480lbs. MAIZE—Argentine, 70/-; American mixed No. 2, 76/-; No. 3 do., 75/-; and African ranges from 73/- to 77/-, as to grade per 480lbs. BARLEY—American malting, also Canada Western No. 3, 66/- per 400lbs. OATS—American white clipped, 35lb., 59/- per 320lbs.

MARK LANE, Friday.—English WHEAT in fair supply and trade steady; whites delivered up and reds 73/- to 77/- per qr. 504lbs. Foreign grades—Moderate business and prices maintained; all grades quoted 84/3 ex ship, with sales at 84/9 landed. FLOUR quietly steady; home-milled G.R. 44/3 ex mill, imported 46/3 ex warehouse. GRINDING BARLEY slow; native 67/- to 70/- per 448lbs., American and Canadian 68/- to 70/- per 400lbs. landed. OATS in good demand; native 50/6 to 51/6 per 336lbs. Irish 57/3 paid per 320lbs. landed, Plate 62/6 to 63/6 landed. American white clipped 61/3 to 62/- landed. MAIZE slow of sale; mixed American 78/- to 80/-, African 76/- to 80/- landed, Plate 72/- landed.

LIVERPOOL, Friday.—C.i.f. prices of wheat and maize were not offered, but prices were nominally unchanged. WHEAT on the spot met a fair inquiry, and business covered some allocations of soft red and smutty winter to millers on Government terms. MAIZE—Spot parcels scarce and more or less nominal. FLOUR was in moderate request, and further parcels of imported were released to millers at the official prices. BEANS and OATS quiet at easier prices. BARLEY, PEAS, and OATMEAL showed no material change. There was no trading in wheat or maize parcels afloat owing to the absence of sellers.

WAKEFIELD, Friday.—Light supplies of grain, but business was rather slow at last week's prices. Grain for seed purposes in fair request. Feeding stuffs more plentiful, but demand slow.

DERBY, Friday.—Oats were so plentiful as to be offered in good quality at 2/- below maximum prices. Wheat scarce and of inferior quality, fetching in consequence as much as 7/- below maximum prices. No barley. Beans again showed a tendency to fall, due to Government action in regard to foreign beans.

PROVISIONS. DUBLIN POTATO, Friday.—There is some pinch in the situation of trade for potatoes, and country dealers are making strong endeavour to force the hands of city factors. The latter, however, are in a better position to gauge the actual resources of the country, and the heavy stocks of potatoes still on growers' hands, for which time is getting limited in which to dispose of same, and they advise a status quo in values under the circumstances. The North of Ireland position through military attitude has created a rather artificial impression of selling values of potatoes, and folk at this end recently drawing upon the North find themselves backing the wrong horse, so to speak. At all events, city factors have mostly concluded that there are enormous stocks of potatoes in all parts of the country yet to be cashed, for which it will be ultimately difficult to find a trade, and therefore for the present think that any variation in values would be a great mistake. Choice table potatoes can therefore be still purchased at 7/- per cwt., and other qualities 6/- to 6/6 per cwt.

LONDON, Friday.—BUTTER—A further distribution has commenced, consisting of Colonial, Argentine, and Government butter. Control prices—Wholesale, 252/- per cwt.; retail, 2/6 per lb. CHEESE—A distribution of 25 per cent. imported is expected next week. Control prices—Wholesale, 1/5½ per lb.; retail, 1/8 per lb. BACON—Trade dull, the demand being for the better qualities; Irish wanted, while in limited supply: Irish, 188/- ex factory; Canadian, 176/6; American Cumberland cut, 174/-; English cut, 200/-; Wiltshire cut, 176/6; rib in back, 200/-. HAMS—Long and short cuts scarce and in small supply, but shoulders, picnics and backs neglected; Canadian long cut green and short cut green, 170/-; American long cut green and short cut green, 170/-; shoulders square, 143/6; New York, 140/-; picnics, 119/-. LARD in fair demand, but trade less brisk; Irish bladders, seconds, and kegs, 162/- ex factory, all packages; American pails, 158/-. EGGS—Market weaker, with liberal supplies, and trade rather quieter; English new laid, 28/- to 30/-; Irish, 26/- to 28/-; duck, 38/- to 40/-; Danish, 26/- to 28/6; Egyptian 15/8; American cold stored, 20/8 per 120.

LIVERPOOL, Friday.—BACON—The removal of the official minimum price for hogs and the lifting of export restrictions on pork in America has had no material influence one way or the other on those markets, and with the unsettled conditions here pending the freeing of products from the end of the month, little disposition was shown to operate in any direction. Awaiting developments, arrivals of American bacon were liberal, and importers continued to offer freely of all cuts, but traders generally confined their operations to actual needs. Wiltshires again being mostly sought after. Shoulders were steady for New Yorks and squares owing to scarcity, but picnics, which were in fair supply, attracted little attention. HAMS in good request, but still difficult to find, and many orders had to go unfilled. Some little c.i.f. in hams reported, also a few transactions in lard at prices which would admit of little concession from present spot rates. Irish bacon scarce and rapidly picked up as offered. LARD on the spot moves but moderately, with ample supplies of both prime steam and American refined available. CHEESE moved steadily on the controlled basis of 1/5½ per lb., delivered to retailers. BUTTER met a steady demand as supplies became ready for distribution. EGGS—Irish in good request, and, with offerings now more restricted, prices showed a hardening tendency though still at 29/- to 31/- per 120. American and Egyptian nominal.

JAMES J. HALPIN, Wholesale Bacon Merchant, 18-19 Thomas st., Dublin. Telegrams—"Middles." 'Phone 1716. Specialising in O'Mara's, Ltd., products.—(Advt.)

DUBLIN FRUIT AND VEGETABLES, Friday.—Fruit without special feature. Apples and oranges are difficult to sell. Lemons less active. A direct Boston steamer just arrived in Liffey with 151 tons apples and 219 tons American onions. Cabbage and green stuffs continue scarce and dear, but roots in ample supply at normal terms. Features of sales:—Savoy cabbage, 35/- to 63/-, 65/-, 70/- and 73/- per load; Yorks, 30/- to 53/- and 54/- per load; cauliflowers, 3/- to 3/10 and 4/- to 5/6 and 6/3 per dozen; rhubarb, 5/6 to 6/- per dozen bunches; celery, 2/- to 2/6 and 4/3 per bundle; leeks, 2d. to 5d. per bunch; parsnips, 3/3 to 5/3 per cwt.; swedes, 2/- to 2/6 per cwt.; red cabbage, 4d. to 6d. per dozen; scallions, 4d. per bundle; white turnips, 4d. to 5d. and 6d.; jellies, 10d and 1/- per bundle; kale, 2/- per dozen; beet, 6d. to 1/- and 1/4; sprouts, 1/4 to 2/6 per float and tray; thyme, 5d. to 1/11 per dozen; parsley 1/- to 1/9 per float. Cut flowers more plentiful and cheaper.

HALSTON STREET POULTRY, Friday.—Supplies of poultry were scarcely ever so low or disappointing, and the trade is practically starved for stuff in all lines. Values in the circumstances are very firm, and tight up in control zone for everything. Hares make 5/- each. Rabbit trade is rather affected by brood season, and arrivals are mostly of a stringy and tough character. Grazers scarce, and wanted, small sizes rate around 6d. each. Best rabbits still 1/6 to 1/10, 2/- and 2/2 each, but must be prime and of good weight at latter rates.

DUBLIN FISH, Friday.—Fair supplies of country and local hook fish on market; no steamer; also 9 boxes salmon, 4 chests lobsters, 6 of herrings, and 11 boxes mackerel offered. Good all round sale, but values ruled on a moderate scale, averaging 2/8½ per lb. salmon, 2/8½ per lb best trout; turbots, 3/- to 15/- and 17/6; brill, 2/- to 10/-; best soles, 30/- to 50/-; medium, 20/- to 25/-; slips, 10/- to 15/-; best lobsters, 25/- to 35/-, 40/-, and 45/- per 13, average: others, 12/- to 20/- per lot; large plaice, 5/- to 8/- per 4; others, 3/- to 6/- per 8; half-boxes plaice, 50/- to 80/-; codfish, 30/- to 50/-; ray, 20/- to 40/-; whiting, 20/- to 50/-; herrings made up to 27/6 per box, and mackerel, 40/-.

BILLINGSGATE FISH, Friday.—Supply fairly liberal; steady trade. Scottish and Irish salmon, 2/8½; soles and slips, 2/6½; turbot, 1/9; brill 1/6; cured haddocks, 1/4 to 1/6; lobsters, 3/6 per lb.; halibut, 24/6; lemon soles, 20/6; plaice, 10/- to 16/-; cod, 7/- to 9/-; mackerel, 7/6; whiting, 9/- to 10/-; gurnet, 4/- to 8/-; ling, 5/- to 6/-; haddocks, 10/- to 13/-; skate and roker, 12/-; conger eels, 8/-; herrings, 5/-; kippers, 4/- to 8/6 per stone.

GRIMSBY FISH, Friday.—Twenty-two North Sea boats landed good supply of cod, sprags, and plaice. Haddocks and mixed lots were scarce, with an easier demand. Prices fell below Control. Cod, 7/6 to 8/6; sprags, 7/3 to 8/3; English plaice, 10/- to 12/-; Danish, ungutted, 9/-; roker, 4/6 to 5/6; overland coalfish, 3/6 to 4/-; brills, 19/- to 20/-; Norwegian herrings, 4/6; Scottish, 6/- per stone. All other sorts made old Control rates.

MANCHESTER, Friday.—Market quietly steady. BACON—American, Cumberland cut—Hand-to-mouth supplies pending removal of restrictions. HAMS small compass, inadequate to meet the demand. LARD in fair supply. CHEESE—Another distribution, probably imported, due next week. EGGS—Better inquiry; Irish, 29/- to 31/-; Egyptian sold to retail at 2d. each.

SMITHFIELD DEAD MEAT.—London Central Markets, Friday.—Produce arriving here up to 1 p.m. for market or cold store weighed 866 tons. Of the deliveries, 578 tons were British-bred and 288 tons imported from the Colonies and foreign countries, made up as follows:—

	Beef and Veal. Tons.	Mutton and Lamb. Tons.	Pork and Bacon Tons.	Poultry and Game. Tons.	S'dries Tons.
British-bred	401	121	4	30	22
Imported	184	82	10	6	6
Total	585	203	14	36	28

Average of the ruling wholesale prices of first quality beef, veal, mutton, lamb, and pork, quoted at per stone of 8lbs.:—British beef, 8/4; veal, 7/-; imported beef, 7/10 to 8/4; British mutton, 8/10; pork, 8/10; imported mutton, 8/10; frozen pork, 10/8.

BUTTER AND EGGS.—LITTLE GREEN, Friday.—Butter supplies of suitable class have been run into much narrower compass. The Government allocations, too, from their stocks this week are turning out of most wretched quality, and, although wholesalers are obliged to pay official price, less the very unremunerative dole of 2 per cent. rebate, the retail is making a kick at paying standard terms for what many are inclined to class as rubbishy stuff. Best trade is running upon what fresh creams are available and suitable factory produce. Values rather wider, 2/4½ to 2/5½ and 2/6 per lb. It is anticipated now that there will be some shortage of butter for a few weeks to come. Egg trade has become more settled, and there is an impression that values must soon come back to a cheaper level. Best selected eggs now figure at from 26/- to 28/- per 120; mediums, 24/- to 25/6, and smalls, 21/6 to 23/- per 120. City demand much freer at current terms.

CORK BUTTER, Friday.—Firsts, 272/-; fresh butter, 268/- per cwt.

MANCHESTER BUTTER, Friday.—An allotment on the basis of one ounce per head per week has now been nearly completed, and as the butter offered was New Zealand of fine quality the distribution has given great satisfaction, in view of the poor quality recently experienced.

PRODUCE.—LONDON, Friday.—SUGAR unaltered. HONEY unchanged. COFFEE during the week disclosed a good demand; all qualities suitable to home trade requirements at full to dearer prices. Of Brazilian varieties good Santos is fairly steady, but otherwise a slow tone prevails. Futures—July quoted 93/3; September, 92/6; December, 83/9, with buyers at 89/- per cwt. RICE in steady request on export account. SPICE quiet at about unchanged rates, with sellers inviting bids. JUTE inactive, and general state of market nominal. HEMP—With regard to Manila the following Governmental prices are now in force as from the 6th inst.:—Grade C, £130; D, £125; E, £108; F, £105; S No. 1, £105; do. HAY AND STRAW.—SMITHFIELD, Friday.—Practically no market of hay. The comparatively few loads offered made Control terms. A good deal of hay, however, appears to be coming steadily in from growers to big consumers daily. There was a fair supply of oaten straw, which sold quickly, especially suitable feeding qualities. Damp rather slackened demand for bedding straw, but the comparatively small quantity of wheaten to be dealt with presented no difficulty in cashing to satisfactory advantage. Oaten straw, 3/4 to 3/10, and feed classes, 4/- to 4/6, 4/8, and 4/9 per cwt.; wheaten straw, 3/-, 3/4, to 3/6, and a few specially nice dry loads 2d. to 4d. more.

TRADE REPORT.—MANCHESTER, Friday.—There is no new feature of striking interest in this market to-day. In home directions cloth inquiry is of fair extent, but anything getting through does so with difficulty. China continues to take the lead, but occasionally some offers in light goods for India find acceptance. Minor outlets quiet, and home trade buying not of great weight. An easier tendency manifests itself in yarns, and sales retail in both Oldham and Bolton spinnings.

SHAKESPEARE IN GERMANY.

Invited to address a meeting at the Haymarket Theatre of the British Empire Shakespeare Society, on the occasion of the annual distribution of prizes by Princess Marie Louise, Mr. Henry Arthur Jones, happily inspired, responded with an offer to read a lecture dealing with "Shakespeare in Germany," which he wrote some three years ago. Since it was written the political and military situation has, of course, materially changed. The pamphlet, nevertheless, is as applicable to-day as it was when first conceived. As a trenchant exposition of the warped and tortuous mentality of a nation, boasting itself to be the only true exponents of the highest form of "Kultur," it well deserved the prominence given to it.

Mr. Jones spoke for something over an hour, and obviously room here can only be found for a few of the many forcible points made by him. Germany, he declared, claimed everything that was excellent in modern civilisation, a claim he had no difficulty in disposing of with perfect ease and celerity. Every dramatist, he continued, scatters through his work proofs of his own personal opinions, ideas, and prejudices, and also of the dominant passions and pre-possessions of his soul. In Shakespeare's case nothing could be more clear than his uncontrollable love for England, a fact which the speaker proceeded to prove by numerous apt quotations from his plays, citing in particular passages from "King John" and "Richard II." If, on the other hand, Germans desired to know what Shakespeare thought of them, he would recommend to them a renewed study of certain selections, duly quoted, from "The Merchant of Venice" and "Cymbeline."

That "Macbeth" should have been chosen for the tercentenary performance at the Court Theatre, Weimar, was, said Mr. Jones, a thing altogether extraordinary. For surely never had a people been so vividly or so graphically pictured in their own image than in the complex character of Macbeth. Carefully but boldly Mr. Jones pursued his simile to the bitter end, describing Macbeth's lust after power, physical cowardice, and animal cruelty as peculiarly typical of the Teutonic nature. Turning to the other side of the picture, he emphasised the whole-hearted admiration, profound respect, and keen sense of comradeship invariably conspicuous in Shakespeare's attitude towards the French, even at moments when they and the English were opposed to each other in deadly warfare. Altogether Mr. Jones is to be sincerely congratulated upon a composition delivered with fine emphasis and splendid vigour, in which the elements of patriotism, lofty ideals, and poetic fervour were all effectively blended.

After a brief interval Princess Marie Louise was conducted to the chair, and gracefully performed her part in the ceremony by distributing the various prizes and certificates to their respective winners. A vote of thanks, seconded by Mr. J. W. Joynt, was proposed by Mr. S. R. Littlewood to Her Highness for her kindness in attending the meeting. To this Mr. Acton Bond, at the request of the Princess, replied in suitable terms. Among other speakers were Lord Howard de Walden, the Chairman, who in a humorous little address introduced Mr. Jones, Mr. Arthur Bourchier, and Mr. H. B. Irving.

BOOKS FOR THE BLIND.

A BRAILLE LIBRARY.

Since 1916, when the National Library for the Blind was declared free to all the blind in the United Kingdom, the daily work of sending out literature in embossed type has steadily developed. The average number of volumes dispatched from Westminster is 500 a day, and the work has exactly doubled within the last three years.

On the musical side the library is proving of the greatest assistance to blind organists and teachers, and its selection of 8,000 pieces is much in request, and is being constantly added to. An examination of the catalogue of the National Library reveals a catholic-minded selection of some of the best literary work in the English language. At the present moment the library's writers are engaged upon such widely differing works as Swete's "Anglo-Saxon Reader," Snell's "Equity," M. Buchanan's "Petrograd," Puaux's "Life of Marshal Foch," Le Queux's "Zeppelin Destroyer," and Jack London's "Smoke Bellew."

As a subsidiary part of its service it should be explained that the voluntary workers of the library are rendering most efficient help to the blinded soldiers and sailors undertaking their tuition in Braille reading and writing both in hospital and later at St. Dunstan's Hostel. Considerably over 200 of the old St. Dunstan's men are keen and enthusiastic readers. In addition, consignments of books are sent almost daily to St. Dunstan's itself. The library depends entirely upon voluntary contributions and is without endowment. Funds are urgently needed to enable the committee to develop it fully in response to the demands made upon it by the blind.

Anybody interested in this unique work, and wishing to hear further details, should write to the secretary, or call at 18 Tufton street, Westminster, S.W.1.
